correspondent of the Far East Magazine had received a cable stating that Mr. Yim, Chen, editor of the magazine, had been arrested by the Japanese authorities and 11,000 copies of the book had been destroyed.

To-day, Mr. W. Bartels, manager of the Far East Magazine, sent no such message to Mr. Henry Gellerman, the correspondent in New York.

He denied that Mr. Chen had been arrested or that copies of the magazine had been destroyed.

Mr. Yim, Chen is the director of the Federation of Chinese Industries—United Press.

FOUND GOLD

Playing along the mud flats near his Stanwood home, in Washington, 4-year-old Marion Ferguson picked up a tiny ship's bell. It is of solid gold, believed to be from one of the early day Hudson Bay trading vessels. It was inscribed "Made by the Goodness of the King, 1830."

Christmas In U.S.A.

AMERICA GOES BACK TO PRE-WAR

New York, Dec. 25.

Old-fashioned Christmas red has staged a comeback this year as the popular colour for the season's greeting cards.

After several years of fantastic colour combinations and exotic designs in orchid, aquamarine and similar sophisticated hues, 1935 Christmas cards are back to the holly and poinsettia period.

There are solid-colour red cards with designs in silver and white. There are red mountings and border treatments. Some of the cards even are matched with bright red envelopes.

Green is the second reigning favourite, or seasonal combinations of red and green. Blue is mainly confined to cards of religious inspiration, to which its soft colourings are especially adapted. Combinations of gold and beige and brown are novel and smart, and there also are cards which sponsor a combination of coral and bright blue.

Holly and poinsettias are used in a wide variety of designs, as, for example, a cord of white parchment, silver starred, over a red overlay, with a giant holly spray in red and silver.

Santa Claus, who has been absent from most of the cards lately, appears often this year. Smoothing his beard of real cotton or chatting with a hopeful gamin who offers to "Carry yer bag, Mister," he is depicted almost any way except with his reindeer. Children of punishment is unknown the children are not compelled to attend lessons the pupil does as much for his own development as does the teacher. It is run for normal children something on the lines of A. S. Neill's School in England, and is the first of its kind in Australia.

"Punishment twists and spoils the natural growth of the young child," the Principal, Miss D. Colley, told Austral News. "We believe that teachers' lessons should be so interesting that pupils should want to attend them."

RADIO RESCUE BY UNSEEN SHIP

£2,000 Award For Guiding Steamer From Ice Peril

HOW the 5,161-tons London steamer Tower Bridge was rescued from a North Atlantic icefield last April by following the wireless directions of a ship she never saw was described in the Admiralty Court in London recently.

The unseen ship was the Liverpool steamer Newfoundland (6,791 tons), owned by Johnston Warren Lines, Ltd.

Sir Boyd Merriman, the president, who described it as a remarkable case, said that the Tower Bridge sent out an S O S from the icefield as she was going to St. John's, and it was answered by the Newfoundland, a vessel of £115,000 value, or £250,000 adding the value of her cargo.

Tribute To Captain

The Newfoundland wireless directions as to how the Tower Bridge could get out of the icefield by going east, when she would be free in 12 miles.

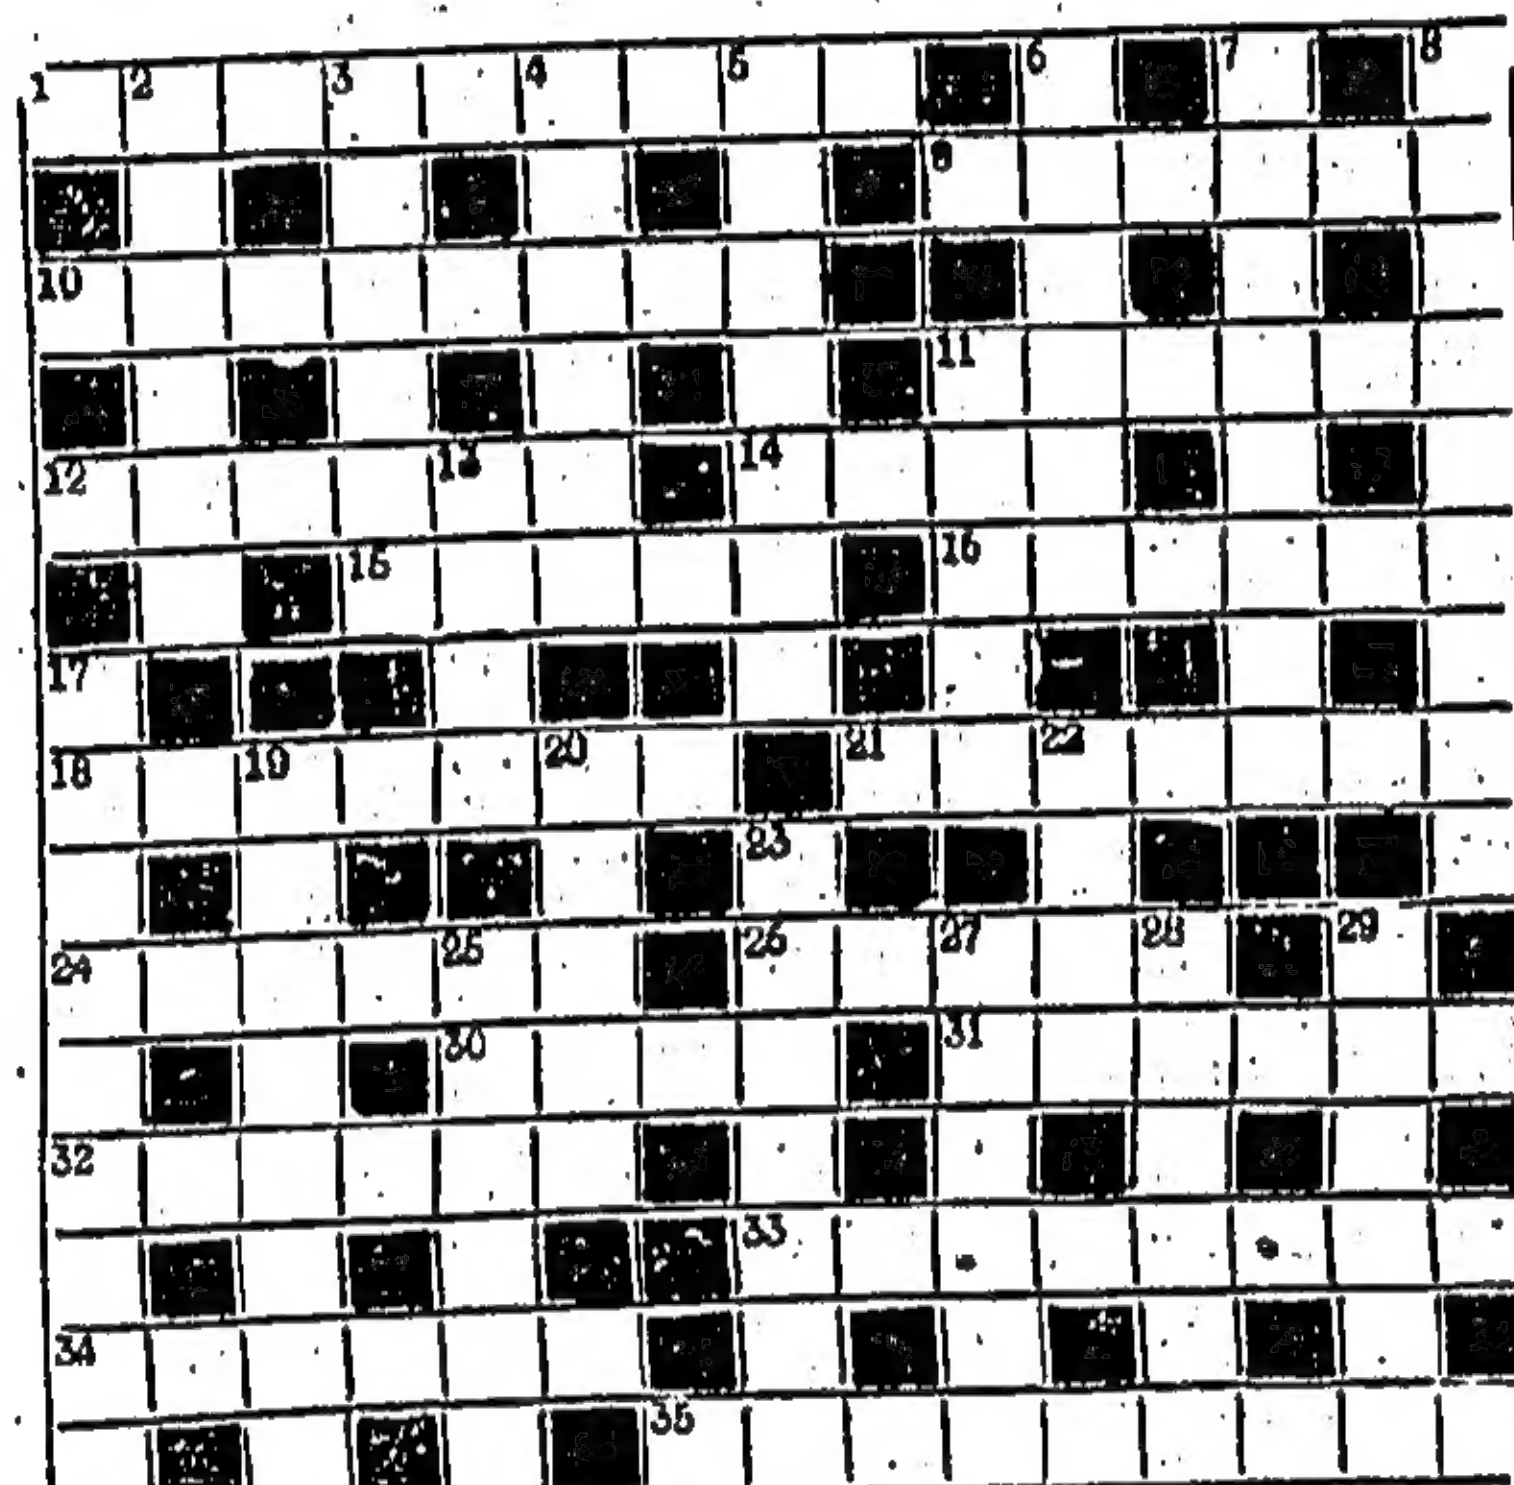

The latter vessel, which was holed and fighting the incoming water with her pumps, had hoped to get out by proceeding south, but the Newfoundland told her that she would need to go 60 miles in that direction.

The Tower Bridge was taken out of danger by the Newfoundland, not by the Newfoundland's towrope, but by following her into safety by means only of her wireless connection.

The captain of the Newfoundland acted in a very praiseworthy, plucky, and prompt manner, and never hesitated about accepting the risks to his valuable ship.

The president awarded a total of £2,000—£1,500 to the owners of the Newfoundland, £200 to the master, and £300 to the crew.

OIL FOR WAR MACHINES OF ITALY!

Scarcely a million dollars in aviation gasoline aboard the steamer Oregon in Los Angeles, but it is pretty well accepted that destination of the 9,250 tons of "gas" is for Italian Somaliland. Owners of the vessel would not deny the cargo had been bought by the Italian Government for war use.

An Italian liner on the regular run from Genoa to Australia, has just brought a large number. Many of them had already settled in Australia but had gone back to Italy on a visit. They are returning very much sooner than they had intended.

ARE EX-QUEEN OF SPAIN HAPPY IN EXILE

Menton, France, Dec. 20.
The duties enforced on royalty make life as miserable that ex-Queen Ena of Spain has no regrets that she has lost her throne, according to a close friend of the Spanish royal family who is vacationing here.
Basing her opinions upon many years of observation of royal affairs during the reign of Alfonso and Queen Ena, the informant says the queen is enjoying personal freedom for the first time in her life.
"A reigning queen's life is all duty," she said, "and my stenographer working from 9 to 5 has a better job and a more enviable existence. I haven't the authority to speak for Her Majesty, but I think I am safe in saying that she has no regret over losing her job as queen."
"The greatest part of a queen's time is taken up with bowing to iron-clad court etiquette, submitting to compulsory ceremonies that are tiresome and boring.
"Over and over they must extend fingertips to be kissed by pompous court officials. Even in receiving their equals, queens or princesses from other courts, whether on state occasions or in private, they are denied the privilege of intimate talks, and must limit themselves to monotonous 'ready-made' conversations.

GLEAMING LINER MAKES ITS FIRST FLIGHT

Out at Municipal Kansas City, Dec. 15.
At first glance of TWA's big headquarters hangar, telling of records, with the proud lettering, transport planes.

There is nothing outwardly to look like 14-passenger superchargers which enable stratosphere. Only an expert could pitch propellers which bite harder at thinner with altitude.

Yet, every grease boy at the Municipal airport grows watch this plane when it takes to the air, for Tomlinson when he strides through the TWA hangar.

A close look at "Number 300" reveals the source of interest. The plane is the company's "flying laboratory." One set of propellers has rubber facing, part of a de-icing system. The propellers present an all metal face, but little pipes from inside the plane open upon their base to squirt an antifreeze solution upon the blades in another de-icing system.

Instead of seats, the cabin contains six one thousand gallon gas tanks or enough to give it a cruising range of 3,700 miles. None knows but that the next takeoff of "Number 300" may be a transatlantic hop if the experimental problems set for it and Tomlinson demand such a flight.

There is a heating system in the cockpit for use in the frigid cold of the stratosphere, where temperatures often drop to 60 degrees below zero. Liquid and gaseous oxygen containers draw into vaporizers to provide the crew with breathable air in the rarified atmosphere above 20,000 feet.

All modern transport planes carry dozens of dials, scales, and meters, but "Number 300" bristles with them. Three radios are set to feed signals into Tomlinson's headset at the touch of a dial. Often he uses two radios at once.

One of the most interesting meters on the panel board is the artificial horizon. On this dial, a tiny plane appears as in flight against a horizontal bar across the dial. Should "Number 300's" nose dip off the horizon in a fog, the tiny plane's nose dips below its horizon line. If "Number 300's" right wing dips, the tiny plane follows the action automatically. There are two such artificial horizon indicators.

BNTON IN NAZI CAOL FOR SIX MONTHS

Frankfurt-on-Main, Dec. 15.
MR. ROBERT O. ROHME, the Londoner who was sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment last May for insulting the German nation, was visited by Reuter's correspondent in his prison at Preungesheim, outside Frankfurt.

Mr. Rohme is an Austrian subject, but his English-born wife and her four children live in Sheaveshill - avenue, Hendon, N.W., and Mrs. Rohme has been making every effort to have her husband released.

The correspondent found Mr. Rohme in a cell measuring 13 ft. by 6 1/2 ft. A strongly barred window, with a casement which can be opened or closed by the prisoner, admitted light and air.

FOLDING BED

Swung up against the wall on one side was a folding bed, with a seaweed mattress. There was a small wardrobe-cupboard, a table, a chair and a small electric light on the wall.

Mr. Rohme was wearing a jacket and pair of trousers of the regulation slate-blue prison colour. When he goes to exercise he wears boots and a military-looking cap. Mr. Rohme stood at attention as his visitor entered his cell. He was ordered to go to the Director's office. In his hand he held the 19 letters which he had received from his wife since he entered the prison on May 17.

"I am grateful to have three letters a month from my dear wife," he said. "I am allowed to send one letter home a month. I am not allowed to criticise the prison, but I may otherwise describe all the details of my life, including the food I get."

ENGLISH BOOKS

"The books from the prison library are not enough for scientific work, but they are entertaining and help to pass the time. The library has some English books, which are a special consolation. I am sorry that I am not able to work, because life in a prison cell becomes very lonely."

"I am a Catholic and I go to church regularly. I am very grateful whenever I may talk to the chaplain."

"To-day I had a small photograph from my family. They are allowing me to put it on the wall of my cell."

"It was naturally difficult for me to get used to the food. The greatest difficulty was the coarse German grey bread, made of rye. But I am used to it all that now, and I cannot complain."

Mr. Rohme was led back to his cell.

Science Seeks Key To The Skies

Washington, Dec. 20.
What phenomena will man discover if he ever penetrates the stratosphere and voyages on into outer space?

Dr. William J. Humphreys, in charge of the weather bureau's research work, is speculating on what lies beyond the 14 mile mark reached for the first time by the Balloon Explorer II.

Nobody knows for sure because none has been there, just as sailors did not know—before the discovery of America—what lay beyond the Atlantic ocean. But Dr. Humphreys said he was almost positive the temperature in the "ionosphere," a region approximately 50 to 75 miles above sea level, was as warm as the temperatures of a summer day in the United States. That is, close to 100 degrees above zero.

Humphreys explained that scientists generally agreed to this theory because it was the region where meteors and shooting stars catch fire on their rush toward the earth, where sound waves bounce back to earth again and where the auroras are seen.

But the ionosphere explorer would find no air to breathe and he probably would burst.

The content of any given space of air would be much rarer than at the earth's surface. Dr. Humphreys said the lack of air would be more marked than the difference between standing room on Broadway on New Year's Eve when thousands are crowded together and a southwestern desert where there is not even one settler to 40 square miles.

Any particles in the air in the ionosphere would be ionized or electrified, he explained. Electric currents passing through this rarified air act just as a mercury arc light, throwing off a light.

Radio engineers have known for years that there was a "radio roof" which stopped the radio waves and sent them back to earth or bent them so they shunted along the "roof." Scientists are not sure whether the "ionosphere," which Dr. Humphreys described is the same as the "radio roof."

L. T. Samuels, assistant chief of the Aerology division of the bureau, who supervises the sending of sounding balloons into the sky, said the highest free balloons carrying any instruments—mere midges compared with the 3,700,000 cubic foot capacity Explorer II which carried two men and tons of instruments—had reached 23 miles.—United Press.

Science Says—

WE ARE LIVING IN A "COCK-EYED WORLD"

Our Earth Is A Top-side Magnet Same 25,000 Miles Across.

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 20.
"Science lets it be known that we're really living in a 'cockeyed world'."

Dr. Robert A. Millikan, Nobel prize winner, told the National Academy of Science here that he recently completed a cosmic ray map which shows that the world is a top-side magnet some 25,000 miles across.

The California Institute of Technology professor, who worked out the map with Dr. H. V. Neher, found cosmic ray intensity greater in India than at the equatorial section of the Western hemisphere. In other words, these "mysterious messengers from the outside space," which are the current passion of research workers, are not equally divided even among what might be called magnetic equators.

Cosmic rays are attracted toward Earth's magnetic poles from distances 15,000 miles above the world's surface, Millikan explained. Magnetic pull seems to reach outward that far to grasp any charged particle and draw it toward the poles.

Space explorers could travel a thousand times as far outward as man has gone into the stratosphere and still have their compasses pulled toward the north Magnetic pole just as compass needles are attracted toward it on the earth's surface.

Millikan estimated magnetic force 4,000 miles upward was one eighth as strong as at sea level.

The cosmic ray map was constructed after nine ships had carried self-recording machines across the oceans. These devices ran automatically for three months, needing only winding every seven days.

Dr. Fred E. Wright of the Geophysical laboratory, Carnegie Institution of Washington, discussed craters on the moon in another effort to explain events many thousands of miles upward in space. He said the size of craters from two miles to as high as 150 showed regular relationship, indicating they may have had common origin.—United Press.

Atomic Weights Are All Wrong

Evanston, Ill., Dec. 18.
The chemist's table of atomic weights was believed up to recently by an accidental discovery of chemistry at North-western University.

Dr. Malcolm Dole, 32, said he had proved "beyond doubt" that oxygen, basic measurement of the elements of the universe, weigh more in air than in water.

To chemists his discovery, if substantiated, is as revolutionary as telling the layman that 12 inches do not make a foot.

Dr. Dole's discovery was announced in an interview in the Daily News Index of Evanston. He was testing two types of water to determine their qualities when he chanced upon the difference in the weights of oxygen. Finding his instruments did not check, he at first assumed the error was either in the hydrogen or oxygen.

"To my surprise," he told United Press, "I found the difference did not lie between the elements at all but in the oxygen itself. The difference in parts per million was found to be 4.6 which is of course very slight."

Dr. Dole reported to the American chemical society that the difference was calculated after two experiments by electrolysis of water, one of water from tank hydrogen and oxygen derived from liquid air, and the other of normal water. The oxygen of both was burned with tank hydrogen and the difference calculated.

Unexplained results of other scientists may be solved by the discovery. The late Dr. E. W. Washburn discovered oxygen in the air is heavier than in water. Revision of chemistry textbook may result. University chemists said.—United Press.

CINEMA

THEATRES

James Cagney, the Ben's Theatre screen, comes to attraction in his latest feature, "The Public Enemy," a thoroughly "Picture Story," although a delightful hard-boiled picture. "Picture Story" is based on a newspaper story. Jimmy in the title role, is the stunner picture man who gets photographs of people and news events by hook or crook, regardless of ethics. He is particularly fitted for the job, having served in a term in Sing Sing for robbery just before he enters upon his new vocation. Patricia Ellis, a seventeen year old Broadway ingenue, plays opposite Cagney in a picture which marks her first leading role. Others in the cast include such notable players as Ralph Bellamy, Alice White, Ralf Harlowe and George E. Stone. White has the vamp role and is rough-housed by Jimmy in his usual Devil-may-care style. The screen play is by Allen Rivkin and E. J. Wilson while the direction is by Lloyd Bacon.

"Alice Adams"

Striking characterizations highlight "Alice Adams" showing on Sunday at the King's Theatre, the Booth Tarkington story that won the Pulitzer Prize in 1922, now brought to the screen by RKO-Radio. The drama concerns a girl's gallant struggle to rise from the mire of poverty and social oblivion in a small Midwestern town, where wealth is the yardstick of success. The heroine of the story is an appealing combination of fineness, pretence, and inner courage. Katherine Hepburn is starred in this brilliant role which parallels in "Morning Glory." Contrasting picture of the homes of the wealthy and the "middle class," which flourish side by side in Alice Adams' home town, are vividly drawn in the film. Fred Stone, noted stage star, plays the unambitious father. A nagging, disillusioned, but still ambitious mother is portrayed by Ann Shoemaker. The shiftless, cynical young brother is capably handled by Frank Albertson. The handsome, lover, who is the epitome of all Alice's dreams of an ideal man, is played by Fred MacMurray. Evelyn Venable plays Miss Hepburn's society girl rival.

"Little Big Shot"

Five year old Sybil Jason is the happiest child in Hollywood. Not only because she was selected for the stellar role in "Little Big Shot," her first feature film, which comes to the Alhambra on Saturday, but she has been given the opportunity in the picture of singing a song that was written expressly for her by Carroll Gibbons, whom Sybil calls "Uncle Carroll," and James Dyanforth. The composer is the conductor of a very popular orchestra in London which was Sybil's home before coming to Hollywood. The number is called "Rolling in Money" and was rushed over on the maiden voyage of the new French liner, Normandie, and thence by air to Hollywood in time to be used in Sybil's first Warner Bros. picture. In "Rolling in Money," Sybil includes some very excellent impersonations of Mae West, Greta Garbo and Jimmy Durante. The versatile team of Mort Dixon and Alie Wurzel have also contributed a number for the new picture, which is called "I'm a Little Big Shot Now." A third number that the talented child sings in "Little Big Shot" is "My Kid's a Crooner" and was written by Marian Harris and Reginald Montgomery. The cast includes besides Sybil, the new baby star, Glenda Farrell, Robert Armstrong, Edward Everett Horton, Jack La Rue, Arthur Vinton and J. Carroll Nash, and many others.

GENERAL CHAN CHAI-TONG'S

KINDLY SOLICITUDE

Canton, Dec. 24.

In view of the insufficient supply of certain kinds of farm products, General Chan Chai-tong has suggested to the Provincial Government that a sum $20,000 should be appropriated to purchase large quantities of yellow beans and ground-nut seeds and other kinds of farm products. It is understood that the suggestion of General Chan has been adopted by the Provincial Government, who are instructing the authorities concerned to attend to the matter. Meanwhile, officers will be sent to Shantung Province to make purchases of ground-nut and yellow bean seeds which are famous products of that Province—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

BUSES DAMAGED

VEHICLES COLLIDE IN NATHAN ROAD

A mishap involving two motor-buses and injuries to one of its passengers occurred in Nathan Road yesterday morning.

It appears that bus No. 688 was proceeding down Nathan Road towards the Star Ferry at 10.50 a.m. when it pulled up suddenly near the Duro Garage. Bus No. 654, which was following closely behind, could neither pull up nor swerve in time, with the result that it crashed into the rear of the vehicle in front, causing considerable damage.

Wong Fuk, a passenger in bus No. 688, was slightly injured, receiving a cut over the right eye-brow, and was admitted to the Kowloon Hospital. His condition is not serious. No other passenger was injured, although a few suffered from shock.

The rear of bus No. 688 was severely battered and all the glass was splintered, while bus No. 654 had its radiator and water-tank considerably damaged.

A public motor car ran into a lamp post on Stubbs Road on Wednesday morning, and was rather badly smashed. Fortunately there were no passengers in the vehicle; and the driver was unscathed except for a few cuts caused by the shattering of the windscreen.

TRANSFER TO STRAITS

MR. ARTHUR JACKSON TO LEAVE HONGKONG

It is announced from London that Mr. A. Jackson, who has been Assistant Government Analyst in Hongkong for the past six years, has been transferred to the Straits Settlements, in a similar capacity.

Mr. Arthur Jackson, B.Sc., Ph.D., was born on July 22, 1905. He arrived in the Colony on November 21, 1929, as Assistant Government Analyst, and has served in that post ever since.

From June 10 to August 31, 1932, he was Acting Government Analyst, and from February 22 to November 29 the same year was Acting Monopoly Analyst and Assistant Superintendent of Imports and Exports.

Mr. Jackson went on leave at the end of 1933.

During the six years that he has been in the Colony, Mr. Jackson has made many friends here, who will be sorry to see him leave. An enthusiastic lawn bowler, he has turned out regularly for the Hongkong Football Club.

His many friends wish him the best of luck in his new sphere of work in the Straits.

CHINA TENSION

JAPANESE GRIP TIGHTENS

Tientsin, Dec. 26.
Disappointed at the meagre results of his mission in North China during the past month, General K. Dolhara left for Mukden at 11 o'clock this morning.
He had hoped to see the establishment of an independent or at least clearly defined autonomous government in North China. It is reported that he is extremely chagrined that the Chinese genius for delays and compromises has beaten him.—United Press.

Sung to Meet Tada

Tientsin, Dec. 26.
The Sino-Japanese negotiation on the question of Eastern Hopei Autonomous Government and the Eastern Charhar Incident is expected to be resumed immediately, General Sung Cheh-yuan, Chairman of the Hopei-Charhar Administrative Council, and his party having arrived here yesterday.

It is reported that Mr. Chia Teh-chun, Mayor of Tientsin, called on General Tada, Commander of the Japanese Troops in North China, yesterday at noon, and probably arranged a meeting between General Sung Cheh-yuan and General Tada.

Other high officials who have been reported their arrivals here include Mr. Liu Chia-luen, Chief-of-Staff to the Peiping-Tientsin Garrison Headquarters, Mr. Pun Yuk-kwei, attached to the Hopei-Charhar Council, and General Dolhara, organizer of the Tungchow Autonomous Government.

After the discussions between General Sung Cheh-yuan and members of the Standing Committee of the Hopei-Charhar Administrative Council during the past few days, the internal organization of the Council is now reported to be nearly complete. It is understood that the Council will have three departments, namely political, administrative and financial. Besides these three departments there will be two committees, the Foreign Affairs Committee and the Economic Committee.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

"East Hopei" Extension

Tientsin, Dec. 26.
Another extension of the boundaries of East Hopei autonomous state was indicated in Japanese reports today.

With Tientsin in their possession, the East Hopei autonomists are now demanding the evacuation of the Hainan area to the westward, the papers reported.

The first act of the new Tangku administration was to depose the Chinese police commissioner who refused to co-operate with the Japanese militarists.—Union News.

Fred MacMurray, romantic lead in RKO Radio's "Alice Adams," falls an easy victim to the poignant charm of Katharine Hepburn. The film is showing on Sunday at the King's Theatre.

Garrison Increase Planned

Tientsin, Dec. 26.
"In view of Japan's special status in North China, unlike that of any other foreign power, an increase in Japanese forces stationed here should not arouse any objections."

This statement was made yesterday by Lieut. Colonel Akira Muto, of the Military Affairs Bureau of the War Office, following his arrival here from Tokyo with Col. Seichi Kita, chief of the China Section of the Army General Staff, to serve as liaison officers between Tokyo and the Japanese Garrison here. Lieut. Col. Muto urged an immediate "reorganization and strengthening" of the Japanese forces here.

Such an increase, he told the interviewers, would not in any way conflict with the provisions of the Boxer Protocol.

"Inasmuch as we already have a force stationed here, it is unimportant if it is strengthened," he said. "The local garrison will be increased as soon as this point is understood in Japan."—Union News.

Rival Appointments

Tientsin, Dec. 26.
One hundred members of the Public Safety Bureau, under orders of General Sung Cheh-yuan (Governor of Hopei), have seized control of the Tientsin railway stations, following a deadlock.

Nanking appointed Mr. Lu Meng-hsiung as acting director of the Peiping-Hankow Railway and the Hopei-Charhar Political Council of which General Sung is Chairman ap-

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET IRREGULAR YESTERDAY

New York, Dec. 24.
The following reports on the New York Stock Market have been received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz:

The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's markets: The stock markets were irregular in the final hour, after they had shown strength throughout the day, led by aviation and utility securities. In the course of the day, some new high levels were registered. The market for bonds was irregular. Stocks on the Curb Exchange were upward and active.

S. C. & F. New York Office cables: Stocks: The market had a mixed trend, but the general tone was firm. The Union Pacific Railroad Company has earned $2,539,000 during November, against $1,128,000 last November. Bank Clearings during the week were up 15 per cent.

Cotton: A quiet mid-holiday market. An improved textile demand is expected after the New Year.

Wheat: The combined Argentine and Australian export surplus is estimated at 132,000,000 bushels, whilst the Canadian exportable surplus is estimated at 290,000,000 bushels.

Rubber: A firm market. Offerings were on the light side and prices look likely to go higher.

Special: Average daily petroleum production during the past week is estimated at 2,850,000 barrels, against 2,869,000 barrels the previous week. Brokers' Loans during the past week totaled $265,000,000, against $246,000,000 the previous week.

FRIDAY, DEC. 27, 1935.

AN INDUSTRIAL OBLIGATION

The problem of the depressed areas in Great Britain is one which is at the moment engaging the serious attention of the Government, and Mr. Baldwin, the Prime Minister, has declared that from every point of view he regards the introduction of new industries in these districts as the most important work to which the British businessman can devote his capital and his brains. One of the greatest difficulties in maintaining and improving the industrial position at home and in helping the most hard hit areas is that emigration since the war has been practically stopped and that increased economic nationalism, which has led to all kind of trade barriers between nations, has lessened by a vast amount the international trade which was the basis of so much of the trade in those areas that feel the depression most. The Government, however, has decided that these districts shall share in the work required in connection with the re-equipment of the nation's defence forces. But the Government expects that industry also shall do its part. The policy of Protection which it has adopted has certainly given industry a considerable impetus, and Mr. Baldwin has been at pains to point out that there is a corresponding moral obligation on industry as a whole; it must not be all given on the part of the Government, and all take on the part of individuals. As the Prime Minister has pointed out, if the Government makes it possible for people in industry to do far better than they could have done under the old fiscal system, the least that these people can do, where it is in their power, is to see that when they have new works to put down, they should remember the depressed areas. By following this policy, not only will fresh employment be provided by these new industries, but a very great deal of good will result to these areas by the knowledge that they are not wholly dependent upon one industry, however important. In other words, all their eggs will not be in one basket, and for the young people coming along there may in course of time be a variety of employment, instead of everyone being driven to follow one single occupation. The Government is, so far as it can, setting an example in this regard; it is hoped that the nation's industrial leaders will respond to the reasonable appeal made to them by the Prime Minister.

THERE are a thousand million women in the world—and I have been told to write about the ten most interesting among them! I have no hope of telling you of the nameless heroines of modern life, unhonoured, unparaphrased, unphotographed, almost unknown: the women who do the work of the world, holding together five hundred million homes; tending the seven million sick; creating tens of millions of new lives every year.

Women—all women—are interesting: the flower-girl at the corner, the bride you saw stepping out of St. Margaret's, Westminster, your charwoman. But figures of world interest? Well—

Look, first, in the seats of the mighty, on the thrones of the world. I choose, first among the women of the world, Queen Mary. She was born a Teck in 1867. At twenty-four she was betrothed to the King's elder brother, the Duke of Clarence, the heir presumptive. Soon after he died, her engagement to the King—then Duke of York—was announced.

As the Duchess of York, she was overshadowed by Alexandra, Princess of Wales, Alexandra, the beloved. As Princess of Wales, she was overshadowed by Alexandra, now Queen, still the beloved. As Queen, she was overshadowed by the memory of

NOTES OF THE DAY

FORTUNE SMILES

Mr. Duff Cooper, who has just become Secretary of State for War, is the first professional diplomat of modern times to achieve Cabinet rank. The honour is deserved. Mr. Cooper is a man of courage and self-reliance. There are two high spots in his diplomatic career. The first was at Oxford at a party to celebrate his success in his examination. After the party there was poker. The play was long. Mr. Duff Cooper was fortunate. There was a crowning pistol on the table. An undergraduate who had been the heaviest loser picked up the pistol, removed the magazine, and, pointing the gun at the chief winner, said jestingly: "Duff, you lucky devil, I'd like to shoot you." He pulled the trigger. There was a loud report and a bullet whistled past Mr. Cooper's ear and buried itself in the wall. The undergraduate had neglected to remove the cartridge in the barrel.

FORGOTTEN BUT NOT LOST

The other high spot in his career was in the war. Together with the late Charles Lister, Mr. Duff Cooper insisted on joining up. As the Foreign Office could not afford to lose all its staff, the two men were warned that their diplomatic careers would be ended. Mr. Duff Cooper went to France and won a D.S.O., which it was said should have been a V.C. Then he came home and took his old seat in the Foreign Office. It was eighteen months before Lord Curzon discovered him. He was therefore allowed to stay. The first story is crystal truth. The second is not. But it is already good legend.

"RUGGER" RECORDS.

At the invitation of the Scottish Rugby Union, the surviving members of the Scottish team who played in the first match against the All Blacks in 1905 were present at the international between Scotland and New Zealand at Murrayfield. They included two Scots who in that match made a record which is likely to stand for ever. In that same year of 1905 they had the unique experience of playing both against and for their country. The first time was early in the year when, as a trial before the match against Wales, Scotland came to Fettes to play what many people think the best school side of all time. Scotland won by fourteen points to six. In the following autumn two of these Fettes boys were chosen for Scotland against New Zealand. One was Moir Mackenzie, a powerful forward, who scored both the tries for Fettes against Scotland. The other was the seventeen-year-old Kenneth McLeod, one of the greatest athletes of all time and the only Scottish schoolboy who ever won a cricket Blue at Cambridge. Altogether there were six Fettesians in the Scottish side which so nearly won its match against the first All Blacks. There was not one in the last Scottish team which met the New Zealanders—a proof that Scottish schoolboys are not so hardy as they were, or else that "Rugger" is no longer the be-all and end-all of their existence.

... Ten Women

• Are these Your Choice for the Hall of Fame?

Alexandra, the beloved, now Fleming, who, as Dorothy L. Sayers, proved that a "thriller" could be a good novel as well? But, regal as Alexandra never was; conscientious as Alexandra never was; superb in presence, Gertrude Stein, who dresses like a man. Intellectuals rave about the last twenty years created her: you and I cannot even pretend to understand her verse. My selection is Vicki Baum. Go to the stage for your next choice. £100,000-a-year. Gracie Fields, aged thirty-seven, born in Rochdale, Lancs., with her fantastic versatility? Tallulah Bankhead, aged thirty-three, who husked the voices of the world? I plump for Elisabeth Bergner, five foot three, Jewish, auburn-haired, and just as old as the century. She is so temperamental that one day she said she would only play a certain part if the management would give her a certain motor-car. She made her film-name with Jannings and Veldt in the silent film days in a picture called "Nju." They call her the German Duse.

From the stage to the screen, with a rod of iron, one of the glamorous Dietrich, born in 1902, with her red-gold hair and lovely legs? Mae West with her triumph over her limitations of face and figure, her host of legends, mainly unprintable? Grace Moore, Tennessee-born who graduated to Covent Garden from a Greenwich Village cafe and musical comedy. Shirley Temple, six-kit, she produced revolutionary "robot" dresses for her.

None of these, I think. My vote goes to the Swede who can show you with equal poignance the sorrow of the harlot and the glory of the bride. Greta Garbo, aged twenty-nine, whose ambition is to play the title role in Wilde's "Dorian Gray." She went to Hollywood in 1925, and has reigned supreme ever since. The very stupefying of her cigarettes were sold in her native Sweden for 6d. each.

She achieves her publicity as does Sir James Barrie—by sincerely shunning it. Her real name is Gustafsson. And they say she and John Gilbert are friends again. And from the screen to literature. Will you choose Gabrielle Long, who, as Marjorie Bowen or George Preedy, writes glittering tales of the past? Or Rebecca West, one of the great minds writing to-day? Or Rose Macaulay, with her acid wit? Or Etoncapped Mrs. Atherton great political hostesses of the Schuparelli — she is big enough to be called by her last name with no prefix—has been named as a cross between Ivy St. Helier and Anita Loos. She has a pale face, dominated by huge dark eyes and a full and drooping mouth. Let us leave the arts and go to politics. Lady Londonderry, born in 1879; granddaughter of a duke, daughter of a viscount, wife of a marquis, sole survivor of the great political hostesses of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. Lady Oxford and Asquith, whose age appears in no work of reference; Margot, the enemy of man; and the friend of more; Margot, the wit, who said of Lady Astor that she was "too flippant to feel, too noisy to pray."

I vote for Nancy Astor, aged fifty-seven with the vitality of seventeen. She has always been an anomaly; a Puritan in Cavalier Virginia; an American in the British House of Commons; a Prohibitionist representing Plymouth, a constituency unlikely to abandon grog.

She was the first woman to take her seat in Parliament (the Countess Markievicz was the first woman to be elected), and she was the terror of the House. Once she knew that Sir Frederick Banbury was going to "talk out" a temperance measure of hers. She clung to his coat-tails in a vain effort to make him sit down.

Of women of action in the modern world there is no end: Joyce Wethered, four times golf champion—in 1922, 1924, 1925, 1929; Suzanne Lenglen, queen of the tennis court from 1919 until she turned professional (after just beating a youthful Helen Wills) in 1926; Helen Wills "Foker-Face" Moody herself, seven times champion of Wimbledon, who staged a comeback this year.

Going from sport to larger issues there is Mrs. Petrie, who has driven a motor-car round Brooklands at 134 m.p.h.; Amy Johnson (Mrs. Mollison), who put women on the air map by her England-Australia flight in 1930; the Duchess of Bedford, who, at the age of sixty-four, in widow of An-1929, flew to India.

But of all the women of Captain Scott, action, I crown Amelia Earhart, wife of an ex-utnam, aged thirty-seven, the Cabinet Minister. "Lady Lindy." She passengered a machine across the Atlantic in 1928; she flew one solo on another art—the same course in 1932; she flew the Pacific this year—covering the 2,400 miles from Honolulu to California in eighteen hours—alone; she still flies under her maiden name.

In the world of education there are many names of note. There is sturdy, Russianised Dora Russell, pioneer of democratic schools, pioneer of a new theory of social life; there is Minna Specht, German idealist, whose school was closed up and its funds—£20,000—confiscated by the Nazis.

My choice is Maria Montessori, the first woman to be granted a degree in medicine by the University of Rome. She created a school for feeble-minded children and specialised in child psychology. She evolved the modern theory of hand-work for children; the system of treating them as human beings instead of animals; the conviction that play was as important a work—the Montessori method.

Finally, look at religion. Will you choose Sister Almes Semple MacPherson, dynamic publicist of religious feeling with coloured lights and Wuritzer organs, hot-gossiping and a beauty chorus complete? Will you choose Maude Royden, Companion of Honour, in her sixtieth year; also a suffragette in the pre-war days; fighter, writer, swimmer, motorist, preacher, Puritan?

My last place goes to Generalissimo of the Salvation Army, Evangeline Booth, who rides and swims to keep fit at the age of seventy; who was born on Christmas Day, the seventh daughter of old General Booth, the founder of the Army; who preaches with the fervour of a Jewish prophet. She ran the Army in Canada from 1896 until 1905. She organised and led in person a campaign to the Yukon during the gold rush of 1898.

She ran the Army in America as a self-supporting unit. She succeeded General Higgins, who had displaced her brother, Bramwell, deposed by the Army Council in 1929.

She is tender behind her furious preaching and fearless attacks on what she believes to be wrong. And—unusually for a serious woman doing serious work—she has wit. Once she was told it was time that she considered marriage. She answered: "I have considered it. That's why I'm still a spinster."

The tenth? You must fill that in for yourself. I have.

EXCHANGE MARKET REVIEWED

SILVER DOMINANT FEATURE

S'HAH JOURNAL COMMENTS

Shanghai, Dec. 26. The publication, Finance and Commerce, in its report of the exchange market for the week ended December 26, enters ad libitum comments.

The exchange market during the period under review was dominated by the extraordinary conditions prevailing in the silver markets. The future is obscure because everything depends upon the American policy and no one appears to know what that policy will be or what purpose it is intended to accomplish. American opinion itself is hopelessly divided upon the subject and, in the meantime, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau controls the fate of China's currency. Admittedly, he cannot force the exchange value of the Standard Dollar up, but he can allow it to fall almost to any level. As long as reliance has to be placed on silver, the complete manner of the situation and, judging from his interviews with Press representatives and public utterances, he takes his responsibility quite lightly.

On Monday the market was very steady, due mainly to heavy remittances from Chinese residing overseas and also to a considerable demand for Dollars from banks' outport branches. There were good sellers for near delivery throughout the day and the market closed with sales effected at 1/2 1/4 and 20% for cash. On Tuesday the market opened at the rates prevailing at the previous day's close. The undertone was firm on liquidation of December contracts by speculators. The Central Bank bought 700 cash Gold Bars and Inter, following lower Dairies, silver advances, Japanese banks commenced to buy fair amounts.

UPS AN DDOWNS

On the following day there was again a suggestion of easiness on the renewal of buying orders from Dairies, but the influence of lower silver quotations was not marked in any very definite way. Thursday, Japanese banks and speculators then became very good buyers of exchange in the afternoon. The Government banks were called upon to sell approximately $1,000,000 in all currencies at the official rates and, before the close, for the first time since November speculators were buying at below the Government Banks' quotations.

The market was firmer on Friday owing to more optimistic silver prices from London and on Saturday, a generally better tone prevailed at the opening following news of shipments of silver to America, but subsequent speculative buying was renewed. —Reuter.

HUNDREDS OF NEW PLANES

U.S. WAR DEPARTMENT ORDERS

Washington, Dec. 26. The Department of War has, during the past fortnight, awarded contracts for the supply of 115 attack planes, 103 bombing planes, and 115 observation planes, at a cost of $15,000,000. The Department intends to purchase a hundred pursuit planes, thus exhausting the $28,000,000 appropriation. —United Press.

ECONOMIC EXPERTS

CONFERENCE ASSEMBLED IN CANTON

Canton, Dec. 26. Fifty economic experts from all parts of the country held a meeting this morning at the Municipal Reception Building under the auspices of the China Economic Society. After a brief meeting, the economists visited the Sun Yat-sen University to-day and were favourably impressed by the many imposing buildings of the University. Several professors in the Department of Economics are members of the Society.

The meeting this morning was attended by Mr. Ou Fang-pu, Provincial Commissioner of Finance, Mayor Liu Chi-wei, and Mr. Liu Chi-hsien of the Provincial Government. Several papers on monetary system and banking problems were read. —Union News.

SWATOW ARRESTS

JAPANESE CONSUL LODGES PROTEST

Swatow, December 26. It is reported that a strong protest has been presented to the Municipal Government here by the Japanese Consul-General, in which he demands the release of the three Japanese, recently arrested by the Chinese Smuggling Preventive Guards in connection with a smuggling case.

The Japanese Consul-General also claimed damages. The three persons under arrest have not been released, but negotiations between the Consul-General and the Municipal Authority have been started. The incident is expected to take time to settle, as a strong attitude is being maintained by the Chinese Authorities. —Wah Kiu Yat Po.

TRAGIC DEATH OF TANG YU-JEN

BLAMED FOR PRO-NIPPON POLICY

Shanghai, Dec. 26. Mr. Tang Yu-jen, transferred to be vice-minister of Communication in the recent reshuffle of the Chiang Kai-shek cabinet, was shot eight times. He died in hospital. He was fired at by three unidentified Chinese in a motor-car.

Mr. Tang Yu-jen was a close political associate of Mr. Wang Ching-wei, who escaped death from assassins' bullets a few weeks ago. —United Press.

Wife Witnesses Tragedy

Shanghai, Dec. 26. The assassination occurred at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Mr. Tang Yu-jen was stepping from his motor-car after a visit to Mr. Wang Ching-wei. Just as he was entering the private entrance in the rear of his home he was fired on by two assassins. Mrs. Tang Yu-jen heard the shots and rushed downstairs. She found her husband in a semi-conscious condition.

Mr. Tang was rushed to Dr. New's Hospital, where Dr. New said he was unable to do anything. The patient was then rushed to St. Mary's Hospital, but died en route.

The chauffeur of the Minister declared that in addition to the assassins, he saw two other persons nearby, but he was unable to give a description of them owing to the darkness. —Reuter.

Police Investigation

Shanghai, Dec. 26. The French Police are investigating the assassination. However, the police find no clue to the assassins. —United Press.

Chiang's Condolence

Nanking, Dec. 26. A telegram of condolence has been sent to Mrs. Tang Yu-jen by Marshal Chiang Kai-shek expressing his deep sympathy in the tragic death of her husband. Marshal Chiang highly praised his political ability and said that his death is a great loss to the Kuomintang Party. —Wah Kiu Yat Po.

Last Calls on Friends

Shanghai, Dec. 26. It is revealed that Mr. Tang Yu-jen paid a visit to Mr. Wang Ching-wei, former Chairman of the National Peiping Political Council and well-known pro-Japanese leader, at 1.30 yesterday afternoon. After a brief talk with Mr. Wang he visited Mr. Wang Ching-wei, under whom he served as administrative vice-minister for Foreign Affairs since August 1933.

After seeing the ex-premier he called on Mr. Chang Kung-chuan, the newly appointed Minister of Railways. He remained for about an hour with him.

On returning to his residence, situated in a quiet location in the French Concession, he was shot down. The assassins were thick overcoats and felt hats, which almost completely covered their faces.

Fired at close range, the three bullets struck the victim in his left and right hips and buttock.

There was an atmosphere of tense drama when Mrs. Tang Yu-jen faintly returned home after accompanying her husband to the hospitals.

Madame Wang Ching-wei, prominent Leftist politician who called at the residence were greatly moved by the tragic sight and shed tears.

A Trip Postponed

Mr. Tang Yu-jen returned to Shanghai only a few days ago after participating in the conversations with Mr. A. Ariyoshi, the Japanese Ambassador to China, and General Chiang Kai-shek. It was his intention to revisit Nanking on Christmas Eve, but his plan was postponed because of the students' demonstrations. Students held up all departures of trains from Shanghai. He had hoped to leave for Nanking to-day by aeroplane.

Previously Warned

The vice-minister of Communication was warned by his friends immediately after the sensational attempt on the life of Mr. Wang Ching-wei during the opening of the Sixth Plenary Session of the Central Kuomintang on November 1. Because of his friendly relations with the Japanese Mr. Tang Yu-jen was much criticised for his foreign policy and some of his closest associates had advised him to wear a bullet-proof waist-coat. This advice the young diplomat never took seriously.

It was also said that because of Mr. Tang's cordial relations with Japan he undermined the popularity of Mr. Wang Ching-wei while the latter was President of the Executive Yuan. In 1934 Mr. Tang Yu-jen visited Peiping and negotiated important Sino-Japanese issues with the Japanese diplomats in China. On more than one occasion when Mr. Wang Ching-wei, then concurrently officiating Foreign Minister, was ill and absent from Nanking, Mr. Tang did all the responsible work in the Foreign Ministry. He was the Ministry's chief spokesman since 1934, making many important statements to the press concerning China's dealings with Japan.

A graduate of the Kelo University (Tokyo) in 1919, the late Mr. Tang knew the Japanese language very well, a fact which assisted him tremendously in his rapid promotion in the Chiang Kai-shek Government. Both during his school days in Japan and subsequently in Nanking and Shanghai he maintained close touch with Chiang Kai-shek. His friendship with Chiang Kai-shek and Wang Ching-wei explains to some extent his appointment as vice-minister of Communications in the Nanking Government of December 12, when most

ALL THE HOLIDAY CRICKET

Staff Match At I.R.C.

A drawn game was played on the Indian R.C. ground yesterday between the European and the Local Staffs of the Hongkong Electric Company.

Battling first, the Locals declared at 172 for nine wickets, A. R. Minu hitting 64 not out and T. All 52. The Europeans replied with 144 for nine wickets, J. F. Barron and W. E. Peers claiming 41 each and J. F. Lunny 28.

CRAIGENGOWER C.C. MATCH

At the Craigengower C.C., an enjoyable match was played yesterday between the Married and the Single, the results being a draw.

The Married scored 145 runs, thanks to 47 by T. E. Yeoh and 24 by U. M. Omar, Lee captured three wickets for 28 runs.

In reply, the Singles had 112 runs on the board for nine wickets when stumps were drawn. F. R. Zimmermann made 39 not out and E. Zimmermann had 30. U. M. Omar took four for 32.

KOWLOON 1ST XI v. NAVY

A very enjoyable game was played yesterday on the Kowloon Cricket Club ground where the first eleven of the Kowloon C.C. engaged the 1st XI of the Royal Navy, the match resulting in a win for the home team by four wickets.

Taking first lease of the wicket, the Royal Navy compiled a total of 150 runs, towards which Lt. Miers contributed 37, Engineer Comdr. Davies 21, Lt. Wraith 23 and Surgeon Lt. Dwyer 22. V. Gittins took four wickets for 23 and A. E. Perry three for seven.

The Kowloon C.C. replied with 203 runs for eight wickets. F. S. W. Smith was top-scorer with 61 runs, including ten fours and a three. A. T. Lay scored 49. N. A. E. Mearns and E. F. Fincher 25. Tufnell was the most successful bowler for the Navy, taking four wickets for 60 runs.

KOWLOON JUNIORS WIN

A close game resulted from the meeting of the Kowloon Cricket Club juniors and the Royal Navy juniors on the Navy ground, at King's Park, the former winning by twelve runs.

Battling first, the Kowloon Cricket Club totalled 131 runs, towards which E. E. Lawrence contributed 26. C. B. R. Hunter 15 not out, and R. Baldwin 15. Dave took four wickets for 33 runs and Cripps three for 26.

The Navy scored 123 runs, Birkitt scoring 20, Rose 16 and Eason 33. B. Lay captured three wickets for 23 runs and G. Lee five for 26.

other followers of Wang Ching-wei were ousted.

Mr. Tang was a man of great determination and courage. Despite the frequent attacks by numerous followers of his pro-Japanese policy, he carried on for the past two years, during a most crucial period, fearlessly and resolutely. In addition to his work at the Foreign Ministry he was Secretary-General of the Kuomintang Central Political Council between February 1932 and August 1933.

Mentioned As Ambassador

Mr. Tang Yu-jen was not affected by the temporary exit of Mr. Wang Ching-wei from Nanking politics. It was mentioned in recent Nanking dispatches that he and Mr. C. T. Wang stood the best chances of being selected China's next ambassador to Japan. The former Ambassador, Mr. Chiang Tso-pin, was appointed Minister of Interior on December 12, leaving the Ambassador's post vacant. Chiang Kai-shek has not yet named the new envoy.

Born in 1894, the late Mr. Tang Yu-jen was a native of Luyang in Hunan. He was 42 at the time of his death. He is survived by his mother, wife and four young children, two sons and two daughters, all under ten.

On returning from Japan in 1919 Mr. Tang participated in the revolutionary party affairs. He was President of the Hunan Provincial Bank in 1928-1929 and Director of Economic Research of the Bank of China since 1921. Between December 1931 and last November he was a reserve member of the Kuomintang Central Executive Committee and was elected a full member during the November election.

Bomb Explosion

Shanghai, Dec. 26. A bomb exploded in a basket carried by a coolie on Darroch Road, the same street in which a Japanese bluejacket, Hideo Nakayama, was mysteriously killed on November 9. The Japanese threw a cordon of troops around the scene.

The explosion occurred when a second coolie kicked the basket. Both coolies were injured.

Later, the Japanese troops have withdrawn from the scene of the bombing incident. The authorities are apparently convinced that the affair has no significance.

The coolie picked up the bomb from a scrapheap. —United Press.

Shanghai, Dec. 26. A bomb exploded in Hongkong near the Japanese Naval Headquarters this morning. Japanese marines, steel-helmeted and with fixed bayonets, flung a cordon round the whole district. Two Chinese were seriously injured.

The explosion occurred when a dustman collided with a child's home-made bomb which fell from the dust bin. Both man and child were injured. The Japanese marines patrolled for an hour and have now withdrawn. —Reuter.

Wales:—Rowlands; Wheeler and Keating; Wanklyn, Talbot and Tucker; Parry, Harrison, Conkley, Evans and Roberts.

China's team selectors heaved a sigh of relief yesterday when the referee's whistle signalled the defeat of Wales by Portugal in the semi-final of the International Charity Cup. Not because they do not think highly of Portugal or are in anyway underrating the quality of such opposition in the final, but because the Portuguese play a similar brand of football to that of the Chinese, which China infinitely prefers to the bustling, dashing, "let's go for it boys" sort of stuff practised by Wales.

Yesterday's match at Causeway Bay was both a curious and interesting one. At times it was more curious than anything else. Portugal merited their win yet Wales could have reversed the result without exerting themselves if the forwards had shown any inclination, let alone ideas, of shooting.

CREATIVE GENIUS

Portugal played the purer football and in Bernie Gosano, Ward and Castilho had a forward line trio which made the other performers look very ordinary. Ward was the creative genius, flashing the ball out to his wing partner in classy style, or else taking the sphere right into the Welsh goalmouth by means of an inter-mingling movement with Gosano.

Ward hasn't played better this season. It was a pleasure to watch him. Gosano and Castilho supported in great style. Castilho was not only too fast for Tucker, but too clever. It was just as well for Wales that Keating was at his best. Gomes and Alves were again right out of the picture. In any case, Wanklyn had the full measure of the winger and Talbot saw that Gomes did not have any rope.

Boltrao played a stylish and most thoughtful game at centre-half. His carpet passes were artistic. Elms was disappointing at left half, but Dolgado more than held his own against the Roberts-Evans combination. Costa's enormous kicking was a feature, and in the second half, when his services were most needed, he improved his tackling and so played a notable part in keeping the Welsh forwards at bay. A. V. Gosano was just A. V. Gosano—Polished, rapid, decisive. The beat back on the field, with the exception of Keating who was really magnificent because he was up against a stiffer proposition.

TACTICAL ERRORS

Wales made tactical errors. I was left completely fogged by their refusal to pass the ball to Parry on the right wing. They gave the spectators more of the game than the players, but the Welshmen must have been blind if they did not see that Parry was their only forward likely to score goals, or make the scoring of goals possible.

But Parry was starved—and badly starved. Instead the ball was put through the middle where Conkley could do nothing right. He was in wretched form. Harrison worked like a nigger, but his unforgettable sin was to neglect his partner on the wing. Evans and Roberts were just so-so. Evans missed two lovely chances of scoring in the first half, and then had really bad luck with a bullet-like drive in the closing stages. Roberts was miles too slow-thinking. There were times when he beat Gosano outright but mis-used the ball at the critical moment.

TALBOT DOMINATES

Talbot dominated. Does any other centre-half in local football cover so much ground during a match? He was always active in at unexpected moments to spoil pretty Reckless movements. It was a pity he did not improve his tackling and so played

EMPIRE GAMES MEETING IN AUSTRALIA

SYDNEY MAKING AMBITIOUS PLANS FOR 1938 EVENT

BIG OBSTACLES OVERCOME

After the acrimony associated with at least one department of Imperial sport, the recent decision of the British Empire Games Federation to hold their next meeting at Sydney, in January, 1938, represents a most welcome and at the same time remarkable triumph of the spirit of Imperial goodwill.

For even at the beginning of the present year, the obstacles to holding a British athletic team to Australia, the obstacles to holding the Games in that Dominion were thought to be almost insuperable. Again, in spite of strong Canadian claims and an earnest desire in certain South African circles to be entrusted with the organisation of the next Games the delegates of England, Australia, New Zealand, Newfoundland, Canada, Scotland, South Africa, and Wales produced a unanimous decision by the Federation.

The extent of the difficulties connected with holding the Games in Australia was previously set forth by Mr. E. A. Hunter, secretary of the Federation, in these words: "It would be impossible for a strong team to get away from England at such a time as the New Year. It would be very difficult for the visitors to get away from home in the winter season and after a five weeks' voyage would need more than a month to reach racing trim. The cost would be prohibitive to the visitors and to Australia. The last two Games cost England £10,000 for a team of 100 athletes. For Australia £10,000 would never meet expenses, which would be nearly double that amount. Until Scott and Black are running an air service to Australia the present difficulties must remain almost insuperable."

The problem of choosing a meeting place was further complicated by the Canadians' desire to be entrusted with the organisation, for a second time, the first Empire Games having been held at Hamilton, Ontario, in 1930, with remarkable success. The basis of the first plan the sixtieth anniversary of the Canadian National Exhibition will be held in 1938. Secondly, Mr. E. W. Hughes, general manager of the exhibition, promised to finance the Games. Finally, it was felt that Australia was too far away for the meeting.

QUESTION OF EXPENSE

The Canadians did not, however, press their case eventually, for as Sir James Leigh-Wood, chairman of the Council of the Federation, pointed out, it is clearly desirable to hold the Games in a part of the Empire where they have not been held previously if that is at all possible, although it is agreed that much of their Imperial value would be lost if the other parts of the Empire could not send reasonably representative teams both in quality and in numbers.

The move to obtain the Games for South Africa was abandoned on grounds of political expediency. A big step towards solving the financial difficulties associated with holding the games in Sydney has been taken with the New South Wales cabinet's decision to guarantee the venture up to £10,000. Of this sum £5,000 has been earmarked as follows:

England	£1,500
Scotland	500
Wales	500
Canada	500
N. Ireland	500
Canada	1,200
S. Africa	1,000
N. Zealand	500
India	500
Others	500
Total	£5,000

BRENTFORD GET NEW STAR

SCOTS CENTRE FORWARD

WARING LEAVES ASTON VILLA

London, Nov. 30. David McCulloch, twenty-three-year-old Scots centre forward, came to London last night to be transferred to Brentford.

Terms had been arranged between Heart of Midlothian, McCulloch's club, and Brentford. Manager Harry Curtis, of Brentford, with a cheque for £5,500 in his pocket, greeted McCulloch and Mr. David Pratt, Hearts' manager, when their train arrived at King's Cross at 11 p.m.

The three men went into a station refreshment room. The transfer papers were produced. Suddenly McCulloch refused to sign. He announced that he was happy in Edinburgh; that he knew nobody in London; that the Brentford terms were not good enough. When it was nearly midnight, McCulloch signed, and the £5,500 cheque changed hands.

McCulloch plays for Brentford today.

WARING GOES TO SECOND DIVISION

About the same time that McCulloch was signing, another famous footballer, "Pongo" Waring, of Aston Villa, was being transferred to Barnsley.

Waring was placed on Aston Villa's open-transfer list a few weeks ago. Aston Villa had refused an offer from Bristol Rovers of £1,000 for him. The undisclosed sum paid by Barnsley is the highest the club has ever paid for a player.

CAPTAIN FOSTER TELLS YOU A FEW THINGS ABOUT OUR RACE PONIES

SOME INTERESTING FACTS BROUGHT TO LIGHT

THE Betting number of Able Amazeon in the Queensland Autumn Champions at the last Meeting was 13, and so were also Locksley Hall's 105 and Vancous' 125—both winners of the Last Chance Handicap and the Tarry Handicap respectively.

LOCKSLEY Hall failed to get a place in his 14 outings and was extremely lucky to win the Last Chance Handicap at the last meeting through an oversight on the part of the handicapper in allotting 140 lbs.

THE Secretary of the Hongkong Jockey Club had no luck with a "phylinx" and when the pony donned the new colours of "Troyon" in which steeplechase Newmill has a joint interest, the Brown gelding won the Dulary Handicap on December 14 and paid $34.40 for a win.

BOXING Eve, after running a no-show in the Surrey Handicap on November 10, 1932, was supposed to retire and therefore did not appear in public during 1933. He then staged a come-back and raced with some success in the following year and finished this season with $1,725 to his credit. As a Griffin in 1932, he won several important events including the St. Andrew's Stakes with Mr. "Bob" Charles, who has gone out of racing. Does Boxing Eve intend to carry on?

BRIGHT Star, after the Annual Meeting 1933, was turned in to Mordechai's stud. It will be recalled that Bright Star passed the post first in the Hongkong St. Leger 1931, but was disqualified for bumping and the race was awarded to Gold Key.

DIANA Bay started to don the colours of Mr. Dunbar in 1930 and earned to date $29,003.

FLYING Tourist has lost all his speed and energy as he finished the season with only a third-out of 13 starts.

BURGOMASTER, a good Suburban Griffin of last year, did not "fall in" this season at the Valley and Foreman's ended the year with a Dead-Heat (Elong 150) for a second place in the Paddock Handicap. These two ponies are owned by the Mayor of Taipei and his new Sub has been named "Paymaster." May I suggest that the next one be "Stationmaster."

HELLUVAELLA did not live up to his reputation and was unhitched in seven outings with the best jockeys, Messrs. Black, Frost and Heard at the helm.

HETMAN started his racing career in 1928 and the last race he won was on November 2, the Surrey Handicap, carrying 163 lbs. Bravol the Handicapper.

BARON BAY, who was renamed King's Jubilee, was one of Mr. Dunbar's 1933 Griffins and owing to lameness, the connections discarded the animal. The rejected pony won six races for Mr. Pearce and it is hoped that King's Jubilee will run even better for the new owners, Messrs. Harriman and Bradbury, during 1936.

GUIDING STAR, a kept over Griffin of Kong Bros., is now the property of Dynasty's stable and has been renamed "King's Lead."

TRENTBRIDGE was also a kept over Griffin and won the Blue Riband for Mrs. Pearce in 1933.

PARTNERSHIP started in all 18 times this year and was placed twice. He was one of the best 1933 Subs and won the Garrison last year. What was the matter with its long sequence of unplaced outings? He may run better for the new owner Mr. Li Tso Fong during next year.

PHILANDERER, a Sub. of 1932 disappeared from the course

Babe Ruth Will Return If Made Good Offer

New York Dec. 25. Babe Ruth, the famous baseball player, wistfully said that he would like to return to baseball but he has not, as yet, received any good offers. United Press.

Babe Ruth, baseball's all-time home run king, is the most glamorous of one of the best loved figures among the American sports fans.

He joined the New York Yankees in 1920, and after serving the team for fifteen years he took over as vice-president, assistant manager and player with the Boston Braves, but trouble soon arose among the management of his new club and he was subsequently released.

9 PLAYERS IN A TEAM COLLAPSE

With only seven men Tredomen Works football team struggled in the rain and mud to hold Treharris Athletic in a Welsh Amateur Cup match, at Treharris. The other four men had been assisted off the field exhausted. Then another Tredomen player collapsed... and another... and another. The four survivors carried on. Soon there were only three... then two... The referee blew his whistle and stopped the match—five minutes before time, with Treharris leading 3-1.

Albert Howe In Interport XI

PLAYING FOR SHANGHAI

In Trial Game Next Week

Shanghai, Dec. 25. Shanghai makes its first move to find an Interport soccer team to meet Hongkong on Thursday next, when a probable Interport side will meet Tung Hwa at the Stadium.

An interesting personality in the probable Interport team is Albert Howe, former Hongkong representative player, who is chosen at centre-forward. Howe is present captain of the Shanghai Football Club first division team, and is apparently playing as well, if not better, than ever after his home leave.

Fred Perry Returning To England

Sydney, Dec. 1. As his torn muscles have failed to respond to treatment, Fred Perry, the Wimbledon champion and British Davis Cup player, has decided to return to England at once.

He will sail from Adelaide next Thursday.

Perry said he probably would not play lawn tennis again until next April.

"I shall certainly not play serious tennis until just before the Wimbledon championships," he said. "I have been ordered to rest, and will even have to give up my occasional game of golf."

"When I come home next year I hope I shall be able to make amends for not being able to play on the present trip."

Army Batsmen Take Tea With Club

Elvin Plays Finest Innings of Career

DID HAYWARD MAKE THE BEST USE OF HIS BOWLERS?

(By R. ABBIT)

In almost ideal weather the game between the Club and the Army was commenced at 11.15 a.m. on what appeared to be a fast, true wicket. The Army had the misfortune to be without Bonavia, and when they won the toss they sent in Elvin with Bill Williams.

A. C. Beck who is up here on Christmas leave bowled from the top end and for contrast presumably, Hayward put on Owen Hughes at the Gas Works end. Elvin showed excellent defence, keeping a very straight bat and leaving all the run getting to Williams who was batting better than I have seen him do for months.

The score mounted slowly but steadily and with twenty up or so Elvin glanced Beck very nicely to fine leg and then next over put him to the test with a square cut that went all along the carpet. Meantime I think Melnes might have taken Williams at second slip off Owen Hughes but at the angle from which I was looking I may be wrong.

Owen Hughes now began to toss them up to tempt the batsmen, in which he succeeded, but the batsmen were unkind enough to refuse to give chances.

At 48 T. A. Pearce went on for Owen Hughes and Elvin cut his first ball straight into second slip's hands as he promptly put it on the floor. I don't think I have ever seen Owen Hughes drop so easy a catch.

Williams was batting excellently, watching the ball very closely and punishing the loose ones heavily. His hooking and leg side play was very good indeed.

Elvin was obviously not happy with Pearce but hung on somehow. Beck became a bit short and I question the policy of bowling him while sixty runs were scored, unless the idea was that once he went off he would have to stop off owing to stiffness.

Duckitt seldom seems to get much of a show with the ball. Even when Beck went off at sixty-four, Duckitt was put on, though admittedly this may prove to be an over to get Pearce to his usual end. (This account is being written from the score box while the game goes on to try and make it a little more vivid.)

STILL NO DUCKITT
Owen Hughes, to every one's amazement bowled the next over which gave Elvin a sitting four, long leg. Pearce went on bowling round the wicket from his usual end and then Duckitt went on at the other. Owen Hughes stopped a couple of good ones, of which one was as near as a catch as may be without being out. How he reached it at all I don't know. At 75 Elvin was again missed off Pearce at second slip, an easy catch, going right through Stewart's hands for a couple. And so things went on. With three bowlers on the side, Duckitt, Stewart and Melnes, even if they are not brilliant one would have thought that they might have had a trial. But Die altit vixit.

The hundred went up and then at 100 Pearce was rewarded when he bowled Williams with a good 'un, at which the batsman hit far too soon.

Dawson succeeded and runs continued to come. Elvin was playing very nice cricket and completed his fifty before tiffin, which was taken with the score at 135 for one wicket.

AFTER Tiffin

Pearce and Beck (at the Law Courts end) had a long spell after lunch but in a left-hander at this juncture. Singles began to come as the Club had their field set right out.

Four came in Owen Hughes' second over and then Ballard was bowled in hitting and the innings was declared closed with the score at 277-7.

—2. Pearce was not out 30, and the runs had come in 100 minutes batting.

THE CLUB BAT

T. E. Pearce and Duckitt went in to face Garthwaite and Ballard at 4 p.m. and found both bowlers keeping a very steady length. They played sound defensive cricket and did not bustle too much for runs, and Duckitt was very lucky to be dropped at second slip off a hard but by no means impossible catch. After thirty-five minutes T. E. Pearce who had made fifteen of the twenty-five runs scored was well caught at the wicket by Horbert, standing up.

T. A. Pearce who came in next seemed to be in no difficulties but after scoring two he was yanked by Ballard (35-2-2). Duckitt had been jogging along steadily but was again lucky to be dropped in the slips. A similar bit of luck befell Owen Hughes in his first over, I think, and in his second I am sure. He made a hard crack to the square leg boundary—Walch having forgotten to block the typical shot. He had a very similar one over or so later, and the fifty was hoisted, when Elvin relieved Garthwaite. He was all right for Duckitt but Owen Hughes has always been partial to him and took seven runs off his first over.

With the score at 74 Pearce went on for Ballard. He bowls fastish medium and was not too easy to get away save for a loose one or two upon the leg. A few runs later Garthwaite went on for Elvin but this time he bowled round the wicket.

By this time (5.15 p.m.) the light was going a bit, though owing to the perfect day's weather it was much better than it usually is at that time.

Owen Hughes by now was playing very pretty cricket in quite his best form and had overhauled Duckitt, who never the less was playing quite nicely. He got a very early snipe from Garthwaite with the total at 90, but he does not seem to get put off by these things and put the bowler beautifully to the long leg boundary next ball but one, to send up the hundred.

Then Fus. King went on and Duckitt sent his first ball, a long hop to the tent for four, incidentally overrunning Owen Hughes. But the rest of the over was not too bad. I am very anxious to see King bowl well, as on the only two occasions I have seen him he had bowled badly. My Army friends however tell me that he really is very useful and slips back from leg very quickly.

Garthwaite bowled one more over and stumps were drawn with Owen Hughes not out 41 and Duckitt not out 42, leaving the Club 170 runs behind with eight wickets to go.

SUMMARY

It has been a delightful day's cricket. Both sides delighted very well with the exception of several lapses, or gully. Both the stumps did excellently. I have already stated that I do not think the Club bowling was handled to the best advantage but I trust it is clear that this is a personal opinion, and advanced quite modestly and not as an indisputable

Staggmen's leap spoils this pass. University of California headed College of the Pacific a 30-0 pasting, but even though routed, the Staggmen fought valiantly. Here are two of them still in the air after grounding a pass intended for Henry Sparks (32), one of Allison's sophomore ends.

Empire Games Meeting In Australia

The cabinet also offers the teams accommodation for four weeks. (Two prior to the Games for training purposes, one for the week of the Games, and one after awaiting return transport.)

Mr. Hunter, however, anticipates little difficulty in raising additional funds so that fifty athletes may be sent from England alone. This number would probably be divided up as follows: Track and field athletes fifteen, swimmers ten, rowers ten, cyclists four, boxers four, wrestlers two, women competitors ten. As one hundred competitors were sent to Hamilton from England, Australia should feel that her enterprise is receiving worthy support, for after all Sydney is twice as far away.

EXERCISE FACILITIES

It is improbable that many universities men or women will be able to join the team as they are usually only available during the long vacation. Nevertheless, it is felt that adequately strong substitutes will be forthcoming from other sources such as the Services. The main problem of delivering the team fit at Sydney seems to lie in selecting it in September when the members are still in the full bloom of their summer health and making special arrangements for them to train together regularly until they sail early in December. Provided they travel on a large ship they should have plenty of scope for preventing themselves running to seed on board. Moreover, in these days there are such excellent training grounds at standard ports of call such as Toulon, Naples, Port Said, Aden, and Colombo that they should be able to keep themselves fully up to the mark.

Alderman E. S. Marks, Chairman of the Australian British Empire Games Association, states that the majority of the competition will take place on the Test Match ground, but how this will be arranged if the suggested scheme for holding an Imperial Cricket Tournament in connection with the Games comes off, is not at present quite clear.

There is also talk of an invitation to the meeting being extended to the Duke and Duchess of Kent or other members of the Royal Family. And a world's sculling championship has been suggested as an additional attraction.

The New South Wales officials will submit their proposals in detail to the assembled representatives of the Empire during the Olympic Games in Berlin next August.

Meanwhile it certainly looks as if the next of these great meetings will in no wise be inferior to their two predecessors, the last of which (in London in 1934) was attended by 100,000 people. As Mr. Hunter has said, Australia has the organisation to run the Games and the standard of athletes, and the public interest warrants their being held there.

Queen's College batted first and could only score 13 runs. Only nine of their players batted, however, as the remaining two did not turn up until after the innings was over. The Ellis Kadoorie School replied with 170 runs.

A feature of the match was the performance of K. Watalun, of the winning side, who apart from capturing seven wickets for six runs, contributed 64 to his team's total without losing his wicket.

PORTUGAL MORE POLISHED

net show more discretion in ball distribution. This took the gilt off a magnificent performance. Wanklyn was easily the best wing half on view. For confirmation ask Alves. Keating thrilled me with his high class defensive play. Wheeler was overshadowed, but very reliable. It wasn't the fault of the rearguard that Wales lost, though I must confess that Rowlands seemed to be in error when Portugal obtained the winning goal.

After Bernie Gosano had completed a wizardly movement by Ward in the first minute of the game by flashing the ball past Rowlands, the game developed into a story of missed opportunities on the part of the Welsh forwards. Not that Wales dominated the game, but they had territorial advantages, but failed to make use of them.

The second half was ten minutes old before Harrison scored a fine equalising goal, and the same period elapsed before Portugal went ahead again, this time through Ward, who sent the ball into an unprotected goal following a scramble from a corner kick.

Talbot got in two terrific drives from free kicks 30 yards out, but both just sailed by the upright, and Evans left Marques standing with a wonderful shot which also just missed the framework. Generally speaking though the Portuguese defence was never in front danger, and the team deserved to win on the run of the play.

What is Wrong With This Picture?

This is not a puzzle picture, although just about everything in it is wrong except the smiling caddy. Certainly there is something radically wrong with the golfer's game and with his temper too; the result most likely of a touch of liver, which could so easily have been avoided.

A little dose of Pinkettes, taken at bed-time when you are feeling liverish, will set you right by morning. These ideal little laxative pills, gently activate the intestinal tract, stimulate the liver, dispel constipation, biliousness, sick headache, restore cheerfulness and a sense of general well-being. Try Pinkettes to-night. Chemists everywhere sell them.

SIR WILLIAM PEEL ON HONGKONG

CHINA ASSOCIATION DINNER

The dinner of the China Association was held this year at Grosvenor House, Park Lane, London, on December 2, when Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., was the Guest of Honour. Earl Whitaker, M.P., the President of the Association, was in the Chair, and among those present were:

H.E. The Chinese Ambassador, Mr. C. Pelham, Sir Peter Gair, Mr. C. W. Ord, Mr. A. W. Burkill, Sir Victor Walleley, Mr. D. G. M. Bernard, Mr. W. B. Kennett, Sir John Pratt, Mr. H. W. Looker, Sir Edward Grove, Sir Thomas Strangman, Dr. W. C. Chen, Mr. Louis Beale, Major R. B. Denny, Sir Gilbert Elliott, the Hon. C. G. Farrar, Lt. Col. N. P. Brooke, Mr. Leo Fong, Lt. Col. H. C. Wilcox, Lt. Col. H. St. Clair Smallwood and Captain T. S. Wynn.

One of the most interesting speeches of the evening was made by Sir William Peel, until recently Governor of Hongkong, and it contained many references to the Colony. Sir William said:

"My Lord President, Your Excellency and Gentlemen, I greatly appreciate the honour that is done me to-night by the China Association in inviting me to be a guest and for having my name coupled with the Toast which has just been drunk. I find it very difficult to face the privilege which has just been thrust upon me of replying for a moment, but much more competent to reply to that toast than I am. This is the first occasion on which I have had the pleasure of attending a dinner of this Association and I confess that I have felt myself in somewhat of a quandary as to what I had to say to-night. I cannot forget a remark which was once made to be by one of my Chiefs, an Irishman, Sir William Taylor, who was Resident General of the Federated Malay States. He said to me 'You know, Peel, you must be very careful. What if the officials like to do to you to invite to lunch or to dinner, and get him on his legs to make a speech and commit himself?' (Laughter).

Eye of Retirement

"The China Association has been very kind to me. When the Committee asked me to lunch with them just before I went to Hongkong, speeches were barred. To-night I find myself, by coincidence, on the eve of my retirement from the post of Governor of Hongkong. In fact if you make allowance for the difference of time, I have in Hongkong ceased to be Governor; and therefore if I do happen to say anything to-night that I ought not to say, feel that I shall be out of my mind. My present permanent Chief, Sir John Maffey, by midnight. (Laughter).

"I tried to make some enquiries as to what was the procedure on these occasions and I was told, I believe, by a senior member of your Committee that I was supposed to be a misfit that I ought to laugh. That came as a great shock, quite apart from the fact that it is hardly my nature. I had lived under the impression that it was an improper to be frivolous on an occasion of this kind as it might say, 'I have been a Rebel in the eyes of an audience of Scotch elders.' (Laughter). I feel, therefore, that I cannot face that particular prescription. I was told, however, at the same time that I must be brief, and that instruction I propose to follow. My speech must be extremely parochial, probably egotistical, which I feel is a sad falling off from the Imperial speech which has been given to you by your President, whose wide knowledge and experience of Imperial affairs has particularly fitted him for the remarks that he has made to-night. My remarks, I take it must be connected with that, small in size, part of the British Empire which is known as Hongkong. I should not presume to talk to this audience on the general Chinese position, which still continues to be sufficiently disturbing, but I feel that most of you know at least as much, if not more than I do. I therefore crave your indulgence should my few remarks appear somewhat egotistical and parochial.

Local Conditions Difficult

"I went to Hongkong nearly six years ago, after 32 years residence and service in Malaya, and I found conditions there very difficult. My term, however, has been an extremely pleasant and extremely interesting one. That this is so is largely due to the friendship and assistance that has uniformly been offered me by the unofficial community of that Colony. The officials of that Colony, from my experience of them, have shown a very earnest desire to assist government and not merely to indulge in destructive criticism. Its Legislative Council I consider to be an almost ideal specimen of such a body. Apart from the spite of oratory, which was almost inevitable on the occasion of the Annual Budget, speeches were conspicuous by their absence, with the result that business was carried through with happy celerity and despatch. I might almost venture to say that I suggest it as a model to that Mother of Parliaments of which your President to-night is such a distinguished member.

"In speaking of the unofficials of the Colony, I should like in particular to mention one gentleman, Mr. Charles Gordon Mackie, who I am glad to see has been chosen to your Committee. I regarded him as one of the most useful unofficial business men in Hongkong, and he was always most valuable to the Government and myself. Incidentally, I was going with him only ten days ago and he was particularly anxious that I should express his regret that circumstances have prevented him from appearing here to-night.

"Fantastic" Pro-Consul Idea

"I may say that the Government of Hongkong and the British Legation, now Embassy, at Peking, have worked together in a very happy and complete system of co-operation. I owe to Sir Miles Lampson and to Sir Alexander Cadogan my grateful thanks for all the advice and assistance which I have received during my term of office. I believe it has been suggested from certain quarters that it would be a good thing if a sort of super-pro-consul were appointed who would combine in his person the duties of the Governor of Hongkong and His Majesty's Ambassador in China. Personally, I think the idea fantastic. I think that anyone holding such a post would find it extremely difficult, and I think, speaking for the Colony, it is hardly to be acceptable. "Further, I should like to express my appreciation of the excellent work done by Mr. Phillips, our Consul-General in Canton. (Applause). I cannot speak too highly of the services that he has rendered. He has proved his tact and his knowledge of the respective positions of Canton and Hongkong, and his services in his present office have been invaluable.

Hongkong and Canton

"The relations between Hongkong and Canton have for some years past been distinctly friendly, but I confess to a feeling of disappointment that those friendly relations have not shown more concrete results. Here again, I apologise for His Excellency for any remarks that I may make affecting part of his great country. I am afraid that our Canton friends, while stressing the friendship which has undoubtedly existed, have given very few concrete results of their desire to help the Colony. It cannot be gainsaid that the spirit of rivalry still persists, and though there is no doubt some foundation for this I cannot but deplore it, for I feel so convinced that each place can give to the other something which would be to the other's advantage. "When the Chairman of the Provisional Government of Kwangtung visited Hongkong at his request and was met by me shortly before my departure, he suggested it would be a good thing if the Colony would send something in the nature of a goodwill mission of British merchants to visit Canton and see the place and get into personal contact. I immediately got hold of Mr. Bell, the Chairman of the Hongkong General Chamber of Commerce, and asked him to arrange it. He did so, and such a visit was paid, though after I had left. I believe it was a very pleasant visit but I have not heard whether it had any concrete results. "One of the brighter spots of our negotiations has been the revision of the working agreement of the Kowloon-Canton Railway. That was very gratifying. The delegates from both sides approached the Conference with the determination to maintain a broad-minded view and to follow a principle of give and take, in the full belief that such a policy would result in advantages to both, and I am happy to say that agreement has undoubtedly resulted in the best conditions on both sections of that railway. (Hear, hear). One of the problems of the future is the question of a loop line between the Canton-Hankow Railway, and the Canton-Hongkong Railway. I am aware that there are interests in Canton who oppose such an idea, but I do not believe that any sane Government would accept that view. The railways are built for the benefit of the whole Province and not for the benefit of one town, and I feel convinced that we shall get full connection through.

Colonial Office Support

"I cannot be charged with sycophantic ideas to-night, because an official of my retirement. I should like to express my gratitude to the Colonial Office for its support and sympathy during my term of office. Not long ago I got from Hongkong a letter written in terms of deprecation suggesting that certain sections of the community felt that the Colony was liable to be forgotten. If that was aimed at neglect on the part of the Colonial Office then I definitely say that the suggestion was entirely wrong. The Colonial Office has had to fight many fights in support of Hongkong. As probably most of you know, we have been attacked by ill-informed persons and have been placed on the map as one of the cesspools of the Empire, morally speaking. (Laughter). We have heard of cruelty to children, child slavery, maisons tolerances and the like. I am prepared at any time to defend the Colony against such attacks, but I definitely say this is not the time or the place. But beyond this, the Colonial Office have shown a thorough appreciation of the difficulties of Hongkong, and its peculiar position as an entrepot port, and have done their best to save it from the imposition of quotas and tariff restrictions, and so far we have been very well treated.

"The matter of air services has probably rendered the community a little impatient, as I admit, it did myself. I never ceased to stress the Home authorities the absolute necessity of getting Hongkong on the air map. There were difficulties which could not be put out in the open. They were definite difficulties, and they have been circumvented rather than overcome, but there would appear to be every prospect of getting Hongkong, and thereby the rest of China, connected with this country by air.

Community and Government

"There is, I think, a tendency, of course, as the bureaucracy—a tendency on the part of the community to resent in times of prosperity any interference by Government. They ask why the Government wants to interfere, why it wants to be so grandmotherly. They are perfectly

PACIFIC AFFAIRS

ONE OF MAJOR ISSUES IN U.S. CONGRESS

Washington, Dec. 25. Returning Congressmen reflect the widespread interest in Pacific affairs by their cursive and extensive consideration of Oriental relations. During the January session of Congress these matters will figure prominently.

The world silver situation appears to be the first matter for direct attention as either an attack on or vindication of the American purchasing programme will involve discussions of the Chinese monetary policy and international ramifications of that policy.

Prior to the recent world price debacle proponents of the purchasing programme planned defence through attempts to refute the allegation that the policy injured silver using countries, but the new situation will apparently arouse discussions as to the feasibility of a strictly nationalised programme.

The London Naval Conference Developments Bill, with the prospective agitation for new Pacific bases, will be an important issue if the London Conference does not arrive at any limitation agreement.

The Session has afforded an occasion for debates on United States-Japanese relations, already foreshadowed by Senator Pittman's attack on Japan at Las Vegas recently.

Philippines Affairs

Philippines affairs are likely to receive more active attention in view of the large Congressional delegation which visited the Islands for the inaugural ceremony in November, but observers have not seen any attempt yet at any major revision of the Independence Act because of the examination of economic relations would apparently necessitate serious consideration of a fundamental change in the Independence Bill.

Hawaiian statehood is also likely to receive more serious attention than ever before due to the pending report of the House Territories Sub-Committee which held public hearings in Honolulu in connection with the matter. Closer ties from new aviation facilities will also tend to bring the discussion of territorial status further into the realm of practical deliberations.

There is apparently no move on foot to modify the Jones-Costello Act relating to tariff arrangements with the Philippines and Hawaii, which is at present regarded as highly beneficial to both territories.

The Supreme Court decisions on the broad features of the A.A.A. are not expected to upset the present sugar marketing programme, but judicial rejection of a tariff processing tax principle undoubtedly would influence the future evolution of sugar control.

Another matter arousing general Pacific interest is the discussion of aerial defence of Alaska which, up to the present, has been authorised in an enabling act but appropriation has never been provided. (United Press).

happy to go on in their own line in times of prosperity, but when times of depression come then it would appear that the community is apt to invent the Government with divine power. In fact in some parts Government is deemed to regard itself as Heaven-born. Either view, I think, is incorrect. Government is only a human body, and we cannot settle difficult questions such as exist to-day by a stroke of the pen.

"I have no hesitation in saying that those of you who are interested in Hongkong may rest assured that in my successor you have one who will do his best for the Colony. (Hear, hear). I have known Sir Andrew Caldecott for years and I have the highest opinion of him both as an individual and as an official, and I think the Colony is extremely lucky to have obtained him as Governor. (Applause).

No Mandate Wanted "I suppose on occasions of this kind any question of politics should be avoided, but I cannot quite refrain from referring from certain quarters that our Protectorates and Colonies should be placed under Mandate. I myself cannot imagine anything more mischievous, nor can I after 28 years experience of Malaya and Hongkong come to any other conclusion than that such a proposal would be entirely repugnant to the inhabitants of those places, whether Oriental or Western. (Hear, hear).

"In conclusion, I should like to congratulate the China Association on the consistent assistance that it has given to Governments both at home and in the Far East. It has shown itself broadminded, and not content with mere criticism has tried to help the Government, and I feel sure that the representatives of the Foreign Office and the Colonial Office who are here to-night will endorse those views. May the Association continue those principles and continue to prosper! (Applause).

"To strike one personal note, I should like to say that it is an especial pleasure to me to-night to be your guest, and have this chance of meeting you on the eve of my retirement after a long spell of service in the East. Retiring as I am to-morrow, or at midnight, I cannot refrain from repeating an anecdote I heard not long ago. An ex-Governor who had retired to a country town or village was strolling down the main street one morning when he met an old friend and who had 'sore' under him. The latter greeted him with the words 'Good morning, Your Excellency, it's a great pleasure to see Your Excellency again.' The ex-Governor ejaculated, 'Your Excellency? Don't address me as that, I'm only Old Bill, up the road.' (Laughter). "Old Bill up the road." I still hope to maintain interest in Eastern affairs and to be able to find a little modicum of occupation in my declining days. On behalf of the guests to-night, and myself, I thank the China Association very sincerely for their kind hospitality and for their welcome to us to-night. (Applause).

LAVAL FACING ANOTHER CRISIS

FOREIGN POLICY UNDER FIRE

CABINET ALLEGEDLY DIVIDED

TO-DAY'S DEBATE WILL DECIDE ITS FATE

Paris, Dec. 26.
M. Pierre Laval's Government is again in a precarious situation and the smallest incident in to-morrow's debate in the Chamber of Deputies on foreign affairs may be the deciding factor.

As a preliminary to to-morrow's meeting of the Chamber, the Council of Ministers, presided over by President Lebrun, met to-day. After the session a laconic communique was issued:

"M. Pierre Laval, the Prime Minister, made an expose of the foreign situation."

The meeting was very brief but it is known that M. Laval reserved for the Chamber a resume of his conversations with Sir Samuel Hoare, the former British Foreign Minister, on the new defunct peace plan and gave only an outline of the speech he will deliver to the Chamber.

Chamber lobbies deduce from the communique after the Council meeting that the Ministers did not entirely approve of M. Laval's foreign policy.—Reuter.

CONFLICTING REPORT

Paris, Dec. 26.
M. Pierre Laval, the French Prime Minister, submitted to the Cabinet and received approval of his foreign policy speech which he intends to make to the Chamber of Deputies to-morrow. Upon this address the fate of the Government is at stake.

The Council of Ministers also discussed the Italo-Ethiopian controversy in all its phases.

It is believed that the Chamber will vote confidence in M. Laval, but by a much reduced margin.

It is understood that the Prime Minister plans a vigorous defence of his activities in connection with the Paris peace plan, achieved by him and Sir Samuel Hoare and is also likely to explain the recent Anglo-French conversations regarding naval co-operation in the Mediterranean.—United Press.

PITTMAN STICKS TO FORECAST

JAPAN AND AMERICA MAY CLASH

(Special to "Telegraph")

Washington, Dec. 26.
Senator Key Pittman to-day claimed that the quotations attributed to him in Las Vegas had failed to follow the text of his remarks. He had made references to the possibility of future trouble between Japan and America and his remarks aroused criticism from Americans and Japanese alike.

He said to-day he intended to make a speech in the Senate in reply to the Japanese Ambassador's request that Americans should not take him, Senator Pittman, too seriously.

Senator Pittman's remarks at Las Vegas had to do with the apparent aspirations of what he called the present military Government in Japan to control western Asia and the possibility that later such a Government would attempt to extend its control to Pacific Islands.

"I said in the course of time this might go further; that if the aspirations of the military Government continued and it remained in power, it was not impossible that the United States would be called upon some time to take action to protect its citizens and the people depending upon the United States for protection," declared the Senator.—United Press.

CHINESE ART EXHIBITION

BATTLE FOR SALT PLAINS

ITALIANS CLAIM SUCCESS

LOSE PLANE AT DAGGAHBUR

(Special to "Telegraph")

Asmara, Dec. 25.
A caravan of 150 Ethiopian salt merchants, with their guards and mules, came into conflict with a band of Danakil tribesmen, irregulars of the Italian army of occupation, and were reportedly put to flight after an engagement which lasted several hours.

The caravan was heading for the great salt depression at Assale where the natives cut blocks of the greasy mineral from deposits left on the surface by evaporation after the heavy rains.—Reuter Special.

FIGHTING FOR PLAINS

Rome, Dec. 26.
Marshal Badoglio reports in a communique that the Ethiopians left a number of dead and wounded on the field when "a body of armed men" tried to defend the salt plains.

The report adds that aircraft bombed Ethiopian concentrations between the rivers Dawaparna and Ganale-doria on the frontier of Kenya, Ethiopia and Italian Somaliland.

The communique does not state the result of the battle for the salt plains, however, beyond saying that the Ethiopians attempted to defend them.—Reuter Special.

RUMOURED ASSAULT

Addis Ababa, Dec. 26.
It is persistently reported that Ethiopian troops under Ras Kassa and Dobnamatch Kassasabbat have launched an offensive against the Italians in the Makale region.

It is officially stated that the Ethiopians near Daggaahbur fired on raiding aircraft, and brought down one of two which flew over the town during the morning.

The pilot was killed and his machine-gun taken intact.—Reuter.

ITALIAN DECAPITATED

Harar, Dec. 26.
It is reported that the Ethiopian garrison at Daggaahbur brought down an Italian observation plane six miles from the city.

One occupant was captured and decapitated, his head being impaled on a spear and exhibited to the troops and the populace.

The two other occupants of the plane fled into the bush, and the Ethiopians

DUNLOP OFFICES BURNED

SERIOUS DAMAGE IN SHANGHAI

LARGE STOCK DESTROYED

According to private cable advice received in Hongkong, the Shanghai office of the Dunlop Rubber Company was destroyed by fire early this morning.

Details are not yet to hand, but it is understood that the entire stocks were either destroyed by fire or damaged by water.

Interviewed this morning, Mr. R. C. Webb, Manager of the Hongkong Branch, confirmed the report, stating that he had received a cablegram to the effect that a fire had destroyed all stocks.

Replacements are being rushed from Hongkong and other offices in China and business will be carried on in Shanghai as usual.

The destroyed premises were situated at the corner of Foochow and Szechuen Roads, one of the busy intersections in the International Settlement in Shanghai.

In addition to Mr. F. S. Gibbings, Managing Director, and Mr. F. C. Young, Director, there is a staff of five, namely, Mr. L. P. Stack, Mr. F. Sullivan, Mr. A. J. Maitland, Mr. F. G. dos Remedios and Miss M. Boulton.

ARREST NOW DENIED

STRANGE STORY FROM SHANGHAI

Shanghai, Dec. 27.

Yesterday it was reported by the United Press from New York that the correspondent of the Far East Magazine had received a cable stating that Mr. Ylon Chien, editor of the magazine, had been arrested by the Japanese authorities and 11,000 copies of the book had been destroyed.

To-day, Mr. W. Bartells, manager of the magazine here, said he had sent no such message to Mr. Henry Gellerman, the correspondent in New York. He denied that Mr. Chien had been arrested or that copies of the magazine had been destroyed.

Mr. Chien is also director of the Federation of Chinese Industries.—United Press.

ESCAPING SERVICE

Vienna, Dec. 26.
The Pan-German News Agency reports that 1,650 German-blooded Italians have fled into Germany in order to escape service in Ethiopia.

It is stated that Italy is persecuting the relatives of these men in an effort to force their return.—United Press.

STEAMER FEARED PIRATED

LONG OVERDUE AT KONGMOON

CARRYING 200 PASSENGERS

Since she left Tin Pak, in Chinese territory, for Kongmoon on December 20, no further news has been received of the steamer, Ng Tai Chow, flying the Chinese flag.

The vessel left Tin Pak with about 200 passengers and a general cargo worth about $40,000. She was due to have arrived in Kongmoon on December 23, but when she did not put in an appearance at that port, fears were entertained for her safety. No information has yet been received by the local agents that she has arrived at Kongmoon.

ANGLO-GERMAN NAVAL ACCORD

Berlin Ministry's Revelations

(Special to "Telegraph")

Berlin, Dec. 26.
The first public report of the Coercing Air Ministry revealed to-day sweeping air force provisions in the Anglo-German naval accord reached last June.

Britain apparently has approved of Germany's building torpedo-carrying seaplanes, bombers fitted with machine-guns, aircraft carriers and warships fitted with seaplane catapults and smoke-screen laying seaplanes.

The report stresses the defence value of the aeroplane.—United Press.

local agents of the vessel, told a representative of the Telegraph that they believed the vessel has been pirated.

They based their fears on the ground that fishermen had seen the vessel steaming in the direction of Sanchow, a route entirely different to that the vessel should have taken on her way to Kongmoon.

The fishermen believe the vessel is now lying in a creek at Ko Lan, in the Heungshan District, which is sheltered from the view of passing steamers.

The Ng Tai Chow has a gross tonnage of about 400, is 148 feet long and 48 feet wide. She does not include Hongkong in her run, but comes here annually for overhaul.

No report has yet been made to the local authorities of her disappearance but it is understood the agents will do so if further news is not forthcoming from the head office.

HUNDRED PERISH OF COLD

AWFUL SUFFERING IN AMERICA

LANDSLIDE IN 'FRISCO

New York, Dec. 26.

At least 100 people have died as a direct result of the coldest spell which America has experienced for twenty-five years.

Thousands were also injured in accidents on ice-bound roads.

Howling winds are sweeping several States, smashing countless windows.

The death toll is constantly mounting as reports from all parts of the country continue to pour into state centres from outlying districts.—Reuter.

'FRISCO LANDSLIDE

San Francisco, Dec. 26.

A terrific landslide, believed due to leaking water pipes or a hidden cave, roared down a mountain side near the San Francisco College for women to-day and forced twenty-five nuns, of the instructing staff, to flee from their quarters which are attached to the college.

A hundred thousand tons of earth fell from the mountain, smashing water pipes and power lines and buckling the surfaces of streets. In one case the roadway was pushed up twenty feet.—Reuter.

ATTACK UPON RELIGION

CHURCH UNITY IS URGED

New York, Dec. 26.

A committee of twenty-nine high Episcopalians has appealed to Episcopalians to unite with the Catholics, charging that Protestantism is "hopelessly dead, morally and religiously."

CHINA STUDENTS THREATENING

TROUBLE SPREADS TO CANTON

MARTIAL LAW DECLARED IN NORTH CITIES

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1884. Received, Dec. 27, 8 a.m.)

Shanghai, Dec. 26.
Martial law, which has been declared in Shanghai, is now extended to Hankow and Nanking in expectation of further student demonstrations.

One train, packed with students, is proceeding at a snail's pace towards Nanking, since the students aboard thwarted the railway officials' plans to halt the train and uncouple the locomotive outside this city.

The students aboard a second train have been dispersed, following the abandoning of their cars twenty miles outside Shanghai's North Station. All were on their way to Nanking to present a protest to the Central Government in connection with the northern autonomy movement.—United Press.

PLAN FURTHER PROTESTATIONS

Canton, Dec. 27.

The student agitation has broken out again in South China, and it is learned that in view of developments in Shanghai and Nanking, the undergraduates at Sun Yat-sen University, who staged a violent anti-Japanese demonstration a fortnight ago, are contemplating new measures. They intend to quit their classes and go on a three-day hunger strike.

The students will make their final decision after the return of Mr. Chow Lu, who is due here from Hongkong, after a lengthy sojourn in Shanghai and Nanking, to-day.

BRITISH STIRRING CHINESE?

STRANGE REPORTS IN JAPAN

HINT OF AID TO AGITATORS

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1884. Received, December 27, 8.29 p.m.)

Tokyo, Dec. 27.
Replying to questions whether the Foreign Office had received official information with respect to some newspaper reports to the effect that British and Americans were seemingly influencing students agitation in China, the spokesman said to-day he had not been formed regarding the participation of particular persons in anti-Japanese demonstrations.

However, it was a noticeable fact that in previous anti-Japanese riots foreign mission schools took a negative attitude; whereas at present mission schools were apparently taking a leading role.

Asked whether the situation were not due possibly to the fact that Chinese were assuming increasing control in the mission schools, the spokesman replied he was not informed.

He added that he was not informed whether a division of Japanese troops had been added to the North China garrisons.

Regarding the Manchukuo-Mongolia controversy, the spokesman said that Hainking officials desire to settle amicably the difficulties which had arisen and the success of conferences depended largely upon the attitude of the Mongolians.

It is understood that the Foreign Office that Manchukuo has sent a formal protest against the recent border activities, although the text has not so far been published.—United Press.

FOUND GOLD

Playing along the mud flats near his Stanwood home, in Washington, 4-year-old Marion Ferguson picked up a tiny ship's bell. It is of solid gold, believed to be from one of the early day Hudson Bay trading vessels. It was inscribed "Made by the Goodness of the King, 1830."

Christmas In U.S.A.

AMERICA GOES BACK TO PRE-WAR

New York, Dec. 25.

Old-fashioned Christmas red has staged a comeback this year as the popular colour for the season's greeting cards.

After several years of fantastic colour combinations and exotic designs in orchid, aquamarine and similar sophisticated hues, 1935 Christmas cards are back to the holly and poinsettia period.

There are solid-colour red cards with designs in silver and white. There are red mountings and border treatments. Some of the cards even are matched with bright red envelopes.

Green is the second reigning favourite, or seasonal combinations of red and green. Blue is mainly confined to cards of religious inspiration, to which its soft colourings are especially adapted. Combinations of gold and beige and brown are novel and smart, and there also are cards which sponsor a combination of coral and bright blue.

Holly and poinsettias are used in a wide variety of designs, as, for example, a cord of white parchment, silver starred, over a red overlay, with a giant holly spray in red and silver.

Santa Claus, who has been absent from most of the cards lately, appears often this year. Smoothing his beard of real cotton or chatting with a hopeful gamlin who offers to "Carry yer bag, Mister," he is depicted almost any way except with his reindeer. Children of punishment is unknown the children are not compelled to attend lessons the pupil does as much for his own development as does the teacher. It is run for normal children something on the lines of A. S. Neill's School in England, and is the first of its kind in Australia. "Punishment twists and spoils the natural growth of the young child," the Principal, Miss D. Colley, told Austral News. "We believe that teachers' lessons should be so interesting that pupils should want to attend them."

RADIO RESCUE BY UNSEEN SHIP

£2,000 Award For Guiding Steamer From Ice Peril

HOW the 5,161-ton London steamer Tower Bridge was rescued from a North Atlantic icefield last April by following the wireless directions of a ship she never saw was described in the Admiralty Court in London recently.

The unseen ship was the Liverpool steamer Newfoundland (6,791 tons), owned by Johnston Warren Lines, Ltd.

Sir Boyd Merriman, the president, who described it as a remarkable case, said that the Tower Bridge sent out an SOS from the icefield as she was going to St. John's, and it was answered by the Newfoundland, a vessel of £115,000 value, or £250,000 adding the value of her cargo.

Tribute To Captain

The Newfoundland wirelessly directed as to how the Tower Bridge could get out of the icefield by going east, when she would be free in 12 miles.

The latter vessel, which was holed and fighting the incoming water with her pumps, had hoped to get out by proceeding south, but the Newfoundland told her that she would need to go 60 miles in that direction.

The Tower Bridge was taken out of danger by the Newfoundland, not by the Newfoundland's towrope, but by following her into safety by means only of her wireless connection.

The captain of the Newfoundland acted in a very praiseworthy, plucky, and prompt manner, and never hesitated about accepting the risks to his valuable ship.

The president awarded a total of £2,000—£1,500 to the owners of the Newfoundland, £200 to the master, and £300 to the crew.

OIL FOR WAR MACHINES OF ITALY!

Secrecy surrounds loading of one million dollars in aviation gasoline aboard the steamer Oregon in Los Angeles, but it is pretty well accepted that destination of the 9,250 tons of "gas" is for Italian Somaliland. Owners of the vessel would not deny the cargo had been bought by the Italian Government for war use.

ITALIANS PREFER TO STAY UNDER BRITISH FLAG

In the past few months there has been something of a rush by Italians in Australia, where colonies of them have settled on the sugar canefields, to take out British naturalisation papers.

It is now learned (says Austral News) that numbers of relatives of these Italians are arriving in Australia with the same object.

An Italian liner on the regular run from Genoa to Australia, has just brought a large number. Many of them had already settled in Australia but had gone back to Italy on a visit. They are returning very much sooner than they had intended.

EX-QUEEN OF SPAIN HAPPY IN EXILE

Menton, France, Dec. 20.
The duties enforced on royalty make life so miserable that ex-Queen Ena of Spain has no regrets that she has lost her throne, according to a close friend of the Spanish royal family who is vacationing here.

Based on her opinions upon many years of observation of royal affairs during the reign of Alfonso and Queen Ena, the informant says the queen is enjoying personal freedom for the first time in her life.

"A reigning queen's life is all duty," she said, "and my stenographer working from 9 to 5 has a better job and a more enviable existence. I haven't the authority to speak for Her Majesty, but I think I am safe in saying that she has no regret over losing her job as queen."

"The greatest part of a queen's time is taken up with bowing to iron-clad court etiquette, submitting to compulsory ceremonies that are tiresome and boring."

"Over and over they must extend fingertips to be kissed by pompous court officials. Even in receiving their equals, queens or princesses from other courts, whether on state occasions or in private, they are denied the privileges of intimate talks, and must limit themselves to monotonous 'ready-made' conversations."

GLEAMING LINER MAKES ITS FIRST FLIGHT

Kansas City, Dec. 15.

Out in the centre of TWA's big headquarters hangar at Municipal airport stands "Number 300," a giant, gleaming Douglas skyliner.

At first glance, this plane with the proud lettering, telling of records established, looks like 14-passenger transport planes.

There is nothing outwardly to reveal the extra horsepower packed within its twin motors, no give-away of the three-gear superchargers which enable it to climb into the stratosphere. Only an expert could detect its constant speed pitch propellers which bite harder and harder as the air grows thinner with altitude.

Yet, every grease boy at the Municipal airport turns to watch this plane when it takes to the air, just as every stenographer and bookkeeper watches its chief pilot, D.K. (Tommy) Tomlinson when he strides through the TWA building.

A close look at "Number 300" reveals the source of interest. The plane is the company's "flying laboratory." One set of propellers has rubber facing, part of a de-icing system. The propellers present an all metal face, but little pipes from inside the plane open upon their base to squirt an anti-freeze solution upon the blade in another de-icing system.

Instead of seats, the cabin contains six one thousand gallon gas tanks or enough to give it a cruising range of 3,700 miles. None knows but that the next takeoff of "Number 300" may be a transatlantic hop for it and Tomlinson demand such a flight.

There is a heating system in the cockpit for use in the frigid cold of the stratosphere, where temperatures often drop to 60 degrees below zero. Liquid and gaseous oxygen containers draw into vaporizers to provide the crew with breathable air in the rarified atmosphere above 20,000 feet.

All modern transport planes carry dozens of dials, scales, and meters, but "Number 300" bristles with them. Three radios are set to feed signals into Tomlinson's headset at the touch of a dial. Often he uses two radios at once.

One of the most interesting meters on the panel board is the artificial horizon. On this dial, a tiny plane appears as in flight against a horizontal bar across the dial. Should "Number 300's" nose dip off the horizon in a fog, the tiny plane's nose dips below its horizon line. If "Number 300's" right wing dips, the tiny plane follows the action automatically. There are two such artificial horizon indicators.

BRITON IN NAZI GAOL FOR SIX MONTHS

Frankfurt-on-Main, Dec. 15.

MR. ROBERT O.

ROHME, the Londoner who was sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment last May for insulting the German nation, was visited by Reuter's correspondent in his prison at Preungesheim, outside Frankfurt.

Mr. Rohme is an Austrian subject, but his English-born wife and her four children live in Sheaveshill avenue, Hendon, N.W., and Mrs. Rohme has been making every effort to have her husband released.

The correspondent found Mr. Rohme in a cell measuring 13 ft. by 6½ ft. A strongly barred window, with a casement which can be opened or closed by the prisoner, admitted light and air.

FOLDING BED

Swung up against the wall on one side was a folding bed, with a seaweed mattress. There was a small wardrobe-case, a table, a chair and a small electric light on the wall.

Mr. Rohme was wearing a jacket and pair of trousers of the regulation slate-blue prison colour. When he goes to exercise he wears boots and a military-looking cap.

Mr. Rohme stood at attention as his visitor entered his cell. He was ordered to go to the Director's office. In his hand he held the 19 letters which he had received from his wife since he entered the prison on May 17.

"I am grateful to have three letters a month from my dear wife," he said. "I am allowed to send one letter home a month. I am not allowed to criticize the prison, but I may otherwise describe all the details of my life, including the food I get."

ENGLISH BOOKS

"The books from the prison library are not enough for scientific work, but they are entertaining and help to pass the time. The library has some English books, which are a special consolation. I am sorry that I am not able to work, because life in a prison cell becomes very lonely."

"I am a Catholic and I go to church regularly. I am very grateful whenever I may talk to the chaplain."

"To-day I had a small photograph from my family. They are allowing me to put it on the wall of my cell."

"It was naturally difficult for me to get used to the food. The greatest difficulty was the coarse German grey bread, made of rye. But I am used to all that now, and I cannot complain."

Mr. Rohme was led back to his cell.

REVIVAL—BY THE TON

Science Seeks Key To The Skies

Washington, Dec. 20.

What phenomena will man discover if he ever penetrates the stratosphere and voyages on into outer space?

Dr. William J. Humphreys, in charge of the weather bureau's research work, is speculating on what lies beyond the 14 mile mark reached for the first time by the Balloon Explorer II.

Nobody knows for sure because none has been there, just as sailors did not know—before the discovery of America—what lay beyond the Atlantic ocean. But Dr. Humphreys said he was almost positive the temperature in the "ionosphere," a region approximately 60 to 70 miles above sea level, was as warm as the temperatures of a summer day in the United States. That is, close to 100 degrees above zero.

Humphreys explained that scientists generally agreed to this theory because it was the region where meteors and shooting stars catch fire on their rush toward the earth, where sound waves bounce back to earth again and where the auroras are seen.

But the ionosphere explorer would find no air to breathe and he probably would burst.

The content of any given space of air would be much rarer than at the earth's surface. Dr. Humphreys said the lack of air would be more marked than the difference between standing room on Broadway on New Year's Eve when thousands are crowded together and a southwestern desert where there is not even one settler to 40 square miles.

Any particles in the air in the ionosphere would be ionized or electrified, he explained. Electric currents passing through this rarified air net just as a mercury arc light, throwing off a light.

Radio engineers have known for years that there was a "radio roof" which stopped the radio waves and sent them back to earth or bent them so they shuttled along the "roof." Scientists are not sure whether the "ionosphere" which Dr. Humphreys described is the same as the "radio roof."

L. T. Samuels, assistant chief of the Aerology division of the bureau, who supervises the sending of sounding balloons into the sky, said the highest free balloons carrying any instruments—mere midges compared with the 3,700,000 cubic foot capacity Explorer II which carried two men and tons of instruments—had reached 23 miles.—United Press.

Science Says—

WE ARE LIVING IN A "COCK-EYED WORLD"

Our Earth Is A Top-side Magnet Same 25,000 Miles Across.

Charlottesville, Va., Dec. 20.

"Science lets it be known that we're really living in a 'cockeyed world.'"

Dr. Robert A. Millikan, Nobel prize winner, told the National Academy of Science here that he recently completed a cosmic ray map which shows that the world is a top-side magnet some 25,000 miles across.

The California Institute of Technology professor, who worked out the map with Dr. H. V. Neher, found cosmic ray intensity greater in India than at the equatorial section of the Western hemisphere. In other words, these "mysterious messengers from the outside space," which are the current passion of research workers, are not equally divided even among what might be called magnetic equators.

Cosmic rays are attracted toward Earth's magnetic poles from distances 15,000 miles above the world's surface, Millikan explained. Magnetic pull seems to reach outward that far to grasp any charged particle and draw it toward the poles.

Space explorers could travel a thousand times as far outward as man has gone, into the stratosphere and still have their compasses pulled toward the north magnetic pole just as compass needles are attracted toward it on the earth's surface.

Millikan estimated magnetic force 4,000 miles upward was one eighth as strong as at sea level.

The cosmic ray map was constructed after nine ships had carried self-recording machines across the oceans. These devices ran automatically for three months, needing only winding every seven days.

Dr. Fred E. Wright of the Geophysical Laboratory, Carnegie Institution of Washington, discussed craters on the moon in another effort to explain events many thousands of miles upward in space. He said the size of craters from two miles to as high as 150 showed regular relationship, indicating they may have had common origin.—United Press.

Atomic Weights Are All Wrong

Evanston, Ill., Dec. 18.

The chemist's table of atomic weights was believed upset recently by an accidental discovery by a youthful assistant professor of chemistry at North-western University.

Dr. Malcolm Dole, 32, said he had proved "beyond doubt" that oxygen, basic measurement of the elements of the universe, weigh more in air than in water.

To chemists his discovery, if substantiated, is as revolutionary as telling the layman that 12 inches do not make a foot.

Dr. Dole's discovery was announced in an interview in the Daily News Index of Evanston. He was testing two types of water to determine their qualities when he chanced upon the difference in the weights of oxygen. Finding his instruments did not check, he at first assumed the error was either in the hydrogen or oxygen.

"To my surprise," he told United Press, "I found the difference did not lie between the elements at all but in the oxygen itself. The difference in parts per million was found to be 4.5 which is of course very slight."

Dr. Dole reported to the American chemical society that the difference was calculated after two experiments by electrolysis of water, one of water from tank hydrogen and oxygen derived from liquid air, and the other of normal water. The oxygen of both was burned with tank hydrogen and the difference calculated.

Unexplained results of other scientists may be solved by the discovery. The late Dr. E. W. Washburn discovered oxygen in the air is heavier than in water. Revision of chemistry textbook may result, University chemists said.—United Press.

FORMER RESIDENT OF HONGKONG

The death occurred in Shanghai on December 19, at the age of 61, of Mr. Walter Kornatz, manager of the Scientific Department "Bayer", Shanghai, of the I. G. Farbenindustrie A. G. Deceased was born in Eastern Prussia.

After completing his pharmaceutical studies he came out to the Far East in 1900, where he was connected with a German pharmacy. Two years later he founded a pharmacy in Hongkong, where he remained up to the outbreak of the Great War, when he again returned to Bangkok to offer his services to the Siam Government. On Siam's entering the War he was interned in India, and returned to Germany in 1919, only to come out to China after a lapse of three years as the representative of

CINEMA NEWS

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

James Cagney, the bad boy of the screen, comes to the Queen's Theatre in the next featured attraction, in his latest Warner Bros. production, "Picture Snatcher" in a thoroughly hard-boiled role, although a delightful, fully entertaining one. "Picture Snatcher" is based on a newspaper story. Jimmy in the title role, is the go-getter picture man who gets photographs of people and news events by hook or crook, regardless of ethics and common decency. He is particularly fitted for the job, having served in a term in Sing Sing for robbery just before he enters upon his new vocation. Patricia Ellis, a seventeen year old Broadway ingenue, plays opposite Cagney in a picture which marks her first leading role. Others in the cast include such notable players as Ralph Bellamy, Alice White, Ralph Harpole and Gerorgette Collins. Miss White has the vamp role and is rough-housed by Jimmy in his usual Devil-may-care style. The screen play is by Allen Rivkin and P. J. Wolfson while the direction is by Lloyd Bacon.

"Alice Adams"

Striking characterisations highlight "Alice Adams" showing on Sunday at the King's Theatre, the Booth "Alice Adams" story that won the Pulitzer Prize in 1922, now brought to the screen by RKO-Radio. The drama concerns a girl's gallant struggle to rise from the mire of poverty and social oblivion in a small Midwestern town, where wealth is the yardstick of success. The heroine of the story is an appealing combination of fineness, pretence, romance and courage. Katherine Hepburn is starred in this brilliant role, which parallels in "Morning Glory" the pasting picture of the homes of the wealthy and the "middle class," which flourish side by side in Alice Adams' home town, are vividly drawn in the film. Fred Stone, noted stage star, plays the unambitious father. A nagging, disillusioned, but still ambitious mother is portrayed by Ann Shoemaker. The shiftless, cynical young brother is capably handled by Frank Albertson. The handsome lover, who is the epitome of all Alice's dreams of an ideal man, is played by Fred MacMurray. Evelyn Venable plays Miss Hepburn's society girl rival.

"Little Big Shot" Five year old Sybil Jason is the happiest child in Hollywood. Not only because she was selected for the stellar role in "Little Big Shot," her first Warner Bros. production, which comes to the Alhambra Saturday, but she has been given the opportunity in the picture of singing a song that was written expressly for her by Carroll Gibbons, whom Sybil calls "Uncle Carroll," and James Dyerforth. The composer is the conductor of a very popular orchestra in London which was Sybil's home before coming to Hollywood. The number is called "Rolling in Money" and was rushed over on the maiden voyage of the new French Liner, Normandie, and thence by air to Hollywood in time to feature in "Rolling in Money." Sybil includes some very excellent impersonations of Mae West, Greta Garbo and Jimmy Durante. The versatile team of Mort Dixon and Allie Wrubel have also contributed a number for the new little actress that is called "I'm a Little Big Shot Now." A third number that the talented child sings in "Little Big Shot" is "My Kid's a Crooner" and was written by Marian Harris and Reginald Montgomery. The cast includes besides Sybil, the new baby star, Glenda Farrell, Robert Armstrong, Edward Everett Horton, Jack La Rue, Arthur Vinton and J. Carroll Naish, and many others.

KWANGTUNG'S CROPS

GENERAL CHAN CHAI-TONG'S KINDLY SOLICITUDE

Canton, Dec. 24.

In view of the insufficient supply of certain kinds of farm products, General Chan Chai-tong has suggested to the Provincial Government that a sum $20,000 should be appropriated to purchase large quantities of yellow beans and ground-nut seeds and other kinds of farm products. It is understood that the suggestion of General Chan has been adopted by the Provincial Government, who are instructing the authorities concerned to attend to the matter. Meanwhile officers will be sent to Shantung Province to make purchases of ground-nuts and yellow bean seeds, which are famous products of that Province—Wai Kiu Yat Po.

BUSES DAMAGED

VEHICLES COLLIDE IN NATHAN ROAD

A mishap involving two motor-buses and injuries to one of its passengers occurred in Nathan Road yesterday morning.

It appears that bus No. 688 was proceeding down Nathan Road towards the Star Ferry at 10.50 a.m. when it pulled up suddenly near the Duro Garage. Bus No. 654, which was following closely behind, could neither pull up nor swerve in time, the result that it crashed into the rear of the vehicle in front, causing considerable damage.

Wong Fuk, a passenger in bus No. 688, was slightly injured, receiving a cut over the right eye-brow, and was admitted to the Kowloon Hospital. His condition is not serious. No other passenger was injured, although a few suffered from shock. The rear of bus No. 688 was severely battered and all the glass was splintered, while bus No. 654 had its radiator and water-tank considerably damaged.

A public motor car ran into a lamp post on Stubbs Road on Wednesday morning, and was rather badly smashed. Fortunately there were no passengers in the vehicles, and the driver was unscathed except for a few cuts caused by the shattering of the windshield.

TRANSFER TO STRAITS

MR. ARTHUR JACKSON TO LEAVE HONGKONG

It is announced from London that Mr. A. Jackson, who has been Assistant Government Analyst in Hongkong for the past six years, has been transferred to the Straits Settlements, in a similar capacity.

Mr. Arthur Jackson, B.Sc., Ph.D., was born on July 22, 1905. He arrived in the Colony on November 21, 1929, as Assistant Government Analyst, and has served in that post ever since.

From June 1929 to August 31, 1932, he was Acting Government Analyst, and from February 25 to November 29 the same year was Acting Monopoly Analyst and Assistant Superintendent of Imports and Exports.

Mr. Jackson went on leave at the end of 1933. During the six years that he has been in the Colony, Mr. Jackson has made many friends here, who will be sorry to see him leave. An enthusiastic lawn bowler, he has turned out regularly for the Hongkong Football Club.

His many friends wish him the best of luck in his new sphere of work in the Straits.

MARKET IRREGULAR YESTERDAY

New York, Dec. 24.
The following reports on the New York Stock Market have been received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz:

The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's markets: The stocks markets were irregular in the final hour, after they had shown strength throughout the day, led by aviation and utility securities. In the course of the day, some new high levels were registered. The market for bonds was irregular. Stocks on the Curb Exchange were upward and active. S. C. & F. New York Office cables: The market had a mixed trend, but the general tone was firm. The Union Pacific Railroad Company

FRIDAY, DEC. 27, 1935.

AN INDUSTRIAL OBLIGATION

The problem of the depressed areas in Great Britain is one which is at the moment engaging the serious attention of the Government, and Mr. Baldwin, the Prime Minister, has declared that from every point of view he regards the introduction of new industries in these districts as the most important work to which the British businessman can devote his capital and his brains. One of the greatest difficulties in maintaining and improving the industrial position at home and in helping the most hard hit areas is that emigration since the war has been practically stopped, and that increased economic nationalism, which has led to all kind of trade barriers between nations, has lessened by a vast amount the international trade which was the basis of so much of the trade in those areas that feel the depression most. The Government, however, has decided that these districts shall share in the work required in connection with the re-equipment of the nation's defence forces. But the Government expects that industry also shall do its part. The policy of Protection which it has adopted has certainly given industry a considerable impetus, and Mr. Baldwin has been at pains to point out that there is a corresponding moral obligation on industry as a whole; it must not be all give on the part of the Government, and all take on the part of individuals. As the Prime Minister has pointed out, if the Government makes it possible for people in industry to do far better than they could have done under the old fiscal system, the least that these people can do, where it is in their power, is to see that when they have new works to put down, they should remember the depressed areas. By following this policy, not only will fresh employment be provided by these new industries, but a very great deal of good will result to these areas by the knowledge that they are not wholly dependent upon one industry, however important. In other words, all their eggs will not be in one basket, and for the young people coming along there may in course of time be a variety of employment, instead of everyone being driven to follow one single occupation. The Government is, so far as it can, setting an example in this regard; it is hoped that the nation's industrial leaders will respond to the reasonable appeal made to them by the Prime Minister.

THERE are a thousand million women in the world—and I have been told to write about the ten most interesting among them! I have no hope of telling you of the nameless heroines of modern life, unphotographed, unparaphrased, almost unknown: the women who do the work of the world, holding together five hundred million homes; tending the seven million sick; creating tens of millions of new lives every year.

Women—all women—are interesting: the flower-girl at the corner, the bride you saw stepping out of St. Margaret's, Westminster, your charwoman. But figures of world interest? Well—

Look, first, in the seats of the mighty, on the thrones of the world. I choose, first among the women of the world, Queen Mary. She was born a Teck in 1867. At twenty-four she was betrothed to the King's elder brother, the Duke of Clarence, the heir presumptive. Soon after he died, her engagement to the King—then Duke of York—was announced.

As the Duchess of York, she was overshadowed by Alexandra, Princess of Wales, Alexandra, the beloved. As Princess of Wales, she was overshadowed by Alexandra, now Queen, still the beloved. As Queen, she was overshadowed by the memory of

FORTUNE SMILES

Mr. Duff Cooper, who has just become Secretary of State for War, is the first professional diplomat of modern times to achieve Cabinet rank. The honour is deserved. Mr. Cooper is a man of courage and self-reliance. There are two high spots in his career. The first was at Oxford at a party to celebrate his success in his examination. After the party there was poker. The play was long. Mr. Duff Cooper was fortunate. There was a winning pistol on the table. An undergraduate who had seen the heaviest loser picked up the pistol, removed the magazine, and, pointing the gun at the chief winner, said jestingly: "Duff, you lucky c—, I'd like to shoot you." He pulled the trigger. There was a loud report and a bullet whistled past Mr. Cooper's ear and buried itself in the wall. The undergraduate had neglected to remove the cartridge in the barrel.

FORGOTTEN BUT NOT LOST

The other high spot in his career was in the war. Together with the late Charles Lister, Mr. Duff Cooper insisted on joining up. As the War Office could not afford to lose all its staff, the two men were warned that their diplomatic careers would be ended. Mr. Duff Cooper went to France and won a D.S.O., which was said should have been a V.C. Then he came home and took his old seat in the Foreign Office. It was eighteen months before Lord Curzon discovered him. He was therefore allowed to stay. The first story is crystal truth. The second is not. But it is already good legend.

"RUGGER" RECORDS

At the invitation of the Scottish Rugby Union, the surviving members of the Scottish team who played in the first match against the All Blacks in 1905 were present at the international between Scotland and New Zealand at Murrayfield. They included two Scots who in that match made a record which is likely to stand for ever. In that same year of 1905 they had the unique experience of playing both against and for their country. The first time was early in the year when, as a trial before the match against Wales, Scotland came to Fettes to play what many people think the best school side of all time. Scotland won by fourteen points to six. In the following autumn two of these Fettes boys were chosen for Scotland against New Zealand. One was Moir Mackenzie, a powerful forward, who scored both tries for Fettes against Scotland. The other was the seventeen-year-old Kenneth McLeod, one of the greatest athletes of all time and the only Scottish schoolboy who ever won a cricket Blue at Cambridge. Altogether there were six Fettesians in the Scottish side which so nearly won its match against the first All Blacks. There was not one in the last Scottish team which met the New Zealanders—a proof that Scottish schoolboys are not so hardy as they were, or else that "Rugger" is no longer the be-all and end-all of their existence.

... Ten Women

• Are these Your Choice
for the Hall of Fame?

Alexandra the beloved, now Fleming, who, as Dorothy L. Sayers, proved that a "thriller" could be a good novel as well? Then there is bullet-headed Gertrude Stein, who dresses like a man. Intellectuals rave about her; you and I cannot even pretend to understand her verse. My selection is Vicki Baum. Vienna-born in 1896, who started life as a harpist, and married the orchestra conductor. She goes to the stage for your next choice. £100,000-a-year Gracie Fields, aged thirty-seven, born in Rochdale, Lancs., with her fantastic versatility? Tallulah Bankhead, aged thirty-three, who husked the voices of the world? I plump for Elisabeth Bergner, five foot three, Jewish, auburn-haired, and just as old as the century. She is so temperamental that one day she said she would only play a certain part if the management would give her a certain motor-car. She made her film-name with Jannings and Veidt in the silent film days in a picture called "Nju." They call her the German Duse.

From the stage to the screen. Glamorous Dietrich, born in 1902, with her red-gold hair and lovely legs? Mae West with her triumph over her limitations of face and figure, her host of legends, mainly unprintable? Grace Moore, Tennessee-born who graduated to Covent Garden from a Green-wich Village cafe and musical comedy. Shirley Temple, six-kit, year-old error of £250 a week? None of these, I think. My self.

Now she designs for the world. She is one of the very few women who design clothes for women. She invented the divided skirt. She revived the dunce's cap and made it the rage. She has even designed a policeman's uniform and sent it to Scotland-yard. It was not adopted.

Schiaparelli — she is big enough to be called by her last name with no prefix—has been deemed as a cross between Ivy St. Helier and Anita Loos. She has a pale face, dominated by huge dark eyes and a full and drooping mouth.

Let us leave the arts and go to politics. Lady Londonderry, born in 1879, granddaughter of a duke, daughter of a viscount, wife of a marquis, sole survivor of the Eton-croqueted Mrs. Atherton great political hostesses of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. Lady Oxford and Asquith, whose age appears in no work of reference; Margot, the enemy of many and the friend of more; Margot, the wit, who said of Lady Astor that she was "too flippant to feel, too noisy to pray."

I vote for Nancy Astor, aged fifty-seven with the vitality of seventeen. She has always been an anomaly; a Puritan in Cavalier Virginia; an American in the British House of Commons; a Prohibitionist representing Plymouth, a constituency unlikely to abandon grog. She was the first woman to take her seat in Parliament (the Countess Markievicz was the first woman to be elected), and she was the terror of the House. Once she knew that Sir Frederick Banbury was going to "talk out" a temperance measure of hers. She clung to his coat-tails in a vain effort to make him sit down.

Of women of action in the modern world there is no end: Joyce Wethered, four times golf champion—in 1922, 1924, 1925, 1929; Suzanne Lenglen, queen of the tennis court from 1919 until she turned professional (after just beating a youthful Helen Wills) in 1926; Helen Wills "Poker-Face" Moody herself, seven times champion of the Wimbledon, who staged a comeback this year.

Going from sport to larger issues there is Mrs. Petrie, who has driven a motor-car round the Brooklands at 134 m.p.h.; Amy Johnson (Mrs. Mollison), who put women on the air map by her England-Australia flight in 1930; the Duchess of Bedford, who, at the age of sixty-four, in 1929, flew to India.

But of all the women of taretic hero Captain Amelia Earhart, action, I crown Amelia Earhart, wife of an ex-Putnam, aged thirty-seven, the American air ace, christened "Lady Lindy." She passengered a machine across the Atlantic in 1928; she flew one solo on the same course in 1932; she covered the 2,400 miles from Honolulu to California in eighteen hours—alone; she still flies under her maiden name.

In the world of education there are many names of note. There is sturdy, Russianised Dora Russell, pioneer of democratic schools, pioneer of a new theory of social life; there is Minna Specht, German idealist, whose school was closed up and its funds—£20,000—confiscated by the Nazis.

My choice is Maria Montessori, the first woman to be granted a decree in medicine by the University of Rome. She created a school for feeble-minded children and specialised in child psychology. She evolved the modern theory of hand-work for children; the system of treating them as human beings instead of animals; the conviction that play was as important as work—the Montessori method.

Finally, look at religion. Will you choose Sister Aimee Semple MacPherson, dynamic publicist of religious feeling with coloured lights and Wurliizer organs, hot-gossiping and a beauty chorus complete? Will you choose Maude Royden, Companion of Honour, in her sixtieth year; also a suffragette in the pre-war days; fighter, writer, swimmer, motorist, preacher, Puritan?

My last place goes to Generalissimo of the Salvation Army, Evangeline Booth, who rides and swims to keep fit at the age of seventy; who was born on Christmas Day, the seventh daughter of old General Booth, the founder of the Army; who preaches with the fervour of a Jewish prophet. She ran the Army in Canada from 1896 until 1905. She organised and led in person a campaign to the Yukon during the gold rush of 1898.

She ran the Army in America as a self-supporting unit. She succeeded General Higgins, who had displaced her brother, Bramwell, deposed by the Army Council in 1929.

She is tender behind her furious preaching and fearless attacks on what she believes to be wrong. And—unusually for a serious woman doing serious work—she has wit. Once she was told it was time that she considered marriage. She answered: "I have considered it. That's why I'm still a spinster."

The tenth? You must fill that in for yourself. I have.

China's team selectors heaved a sigh of relief yesterday when the referee's whistle signalled the defeat of Wales by Portugal in the semi-final of the International Charity Cup. Not because they do not think highly of Portugal or are in anyway underrating the quality of such opposition in the final, but because the Portuguese play a similar brand of football to that of the Chinese, which China infinitely prefers to the bustling, dashing, "let's go for it boys" sort of stuff practised by Wales.

CREATIVE GENIUS

Talbot played a stylish and thoughtful game at center-half. His career success to date has been disappointing at left half, but Delgado more than held his own against the Roberts-Evans combination.

Costa's enormous kicking was a feature, and in the second half, when his services were required, he was superb. He handled and so played well in the final half, and so played well in the final half.

Talbot dominated. Does any other center-half in local football cover so much ground during a match? He was always dashing in at unlooked-for moments, and his accurate movements. It was a pity he did not score more goals.

(M. M. M.) Shanghai Interpor-

team which will do duty in the match is as follows:

G. Boleszewon (A.S.F.); E. V. (Lusitano) and L. Marcal (A.S.C. Remedios (A.S.F.). A. C. (Lusitano) and H. P. M. (S.R.C.); F. Foy (S.F.C.), Collaco (Lusitano), A. G. H. (S.F.C.), A. Boleserie (S.R.C.) J. Ward (A.S.F.).

BIG OBSTACLES OVERCOME

South Africa was abandoned grounds of political expediency.

A big step towards solving the financial difficulties associated with holding the Games in Sydney has been taken with the New South Wales cabinet's decision to guarantee the venture up to £10,000. Of this sum, £6,000 has been earmarked as follows:

Army Batsmen Take Tea With Club

Elvin Plays Finest Innings of Career

DID HAYWARD MAKE THE BEST USE OF HIS BOWLERS?

(By R. ABBIT)

In almost ideal weather the game between the Club and the Army was commenced at 11.15 a.m. on what appeared to be a fast, true wicket. The Army had the misfortune to be without Bonavia, and when they won the toss they sent in Elvin with Bill Williams.

A. C. Beck who is up here on Christmas leave bowled from the top end and for contrast presumably, Hayward put on Owen Hughes at the Gas Works end. Elvin showed excellent defence, keeping a very straight bat and leaving all the run getting to Williams who was hitting better than I have seen him do for months.

The score mounted slowly but steadily and with twenty up or so Elvin glanced Beck very nicely to fine leg and then next over put him to the test with a square cut, that went all along the carpet. Meantime I think McInnes might have taken Williams at second slip off Owen Hughes but at the angle from which I was looking I may be wrong.

Owen Hughes now began to toss them up to tempt the batsmen, in which he succeeded, but the batsmen were unkind enough to refuse to give chances.

At 48 T. A. Pearce went on for Owen Hughes and Elvin cut his first ball straight into second slip's hands who as promptly put it on the floor. I don't think I have ever seen Owen Hughes drop so easy a catch.

Williams was batting excellently, watching the ball very closely and punishing the loose ones heavily. His hooking and leg side play was very good indeed.

Elvin was obviously not happy with Pearce but hung on somehow. Beck became a bit short and I question the policy of bowling him while sixty runs were scored, unless the idea was that once he went off he would have to stop off owing to stiffness.

Duckitt seldom seems to get much of a show with the ball. Even when Beck went off at sixty-four, Duckitt was put on, though admittedly this may prove to be an over to get Pearce to his usual end. (This account is being written from the score box while the game goes on to try and make it a little more vivid.)

STILL NO DUCKITT
Owen Hughes, to every one's amazement bowled the next over which gave Elvin a sitting four to long leg. Pearce went on bowling round the wicket from his usual end and then Duckitt went on at the other. Owen Hughes stopped a couple of good ones, of which one was as near as a catch as may be without being out. How he reached it at all I don't know. At 75 Elvin was again missed off Pearce at second slip, an easy catch, going right through Stewart's hand for a couple. And so things went on. With three bowlers on the side, Duckitt, Stewart and McInnes, even if they are not brilliant one would have thought that they might have had a trial. But Die after vision.

The hundred went up and then at 106 Pearce was rewarded when he bowled Williams with a good 'un, at which the batsman hit far too soon.

Dawson succeeded and runs continued to come. Elvin was playing very nice cricket now and completed his fifty before tiffin, which was taken with the score at 135 for one wicket.

AFTER TIFFIN

Pearce and Beck (at the Law Courts end) had a long spell after lunch but the batsmen never seemed worried and 160 was on the board when Duckitt relieved Beck and nearly had Elvin first ball, a hard snick just going clear of first slip for four.

Both batsmen seemed to have played themselves in again and Elvin, though he had admittedly been lucky three times, continued to play an innings which was far and away above any form with the bat he has ever shown before.

Dawson too was playing very confidently and he is, I think, a very dangerous bat if allowed to settle down. At 108 he hit a terrific one which was far and away above any form with the bat he has ever shown before.

Staggmen's leap spoils this pass. University of California handed College of the Pacific a 30-0 pasting, but even though routed, the 'Staggmen fought valiantly. Here are two of them still in the air after grounding a pass intended for Henry Sparks (33), one of Allison's sophomore ends.

Empire Games Meeting In Australia

The cabinet also offers the teams accommodation for four weeks (two from England alone). This number would probably be divided up as follows: Track and field athletes fifteen, swimmers ten, oarsmen ten, cyclists four, boxers four, wrestlers two, women competitors ten. As one hundred from two and Australia should feel that her enterprise is receiving worthy support, for after all Sydney is twice as far away.

EXERCISE FACILITIES

It is improbable that many universally men or women will be able to join the team as they are usually only available during the long vacation. Nevertheless, it is felt that adequate strong substitutes will be forthcoming from other sources such as the Services. The solution to the problem of delivering the team at Hamilton from England, Australia should feel that her enterprise is receiving worthy support, for after all Sydney is twice as far away.

THE APOTHEOSIS OF ELVIN

However, long Elvin plays cricket I very much doubt if he will ever play such a sterling knock as he did today. True he had bits of luck and at times was content to keep his wicket up and wait for the bad one. But that was the game to play and he had at least two really good shots—a square cut and a glance—which he showed to advantage on many occasions.

It was indeed a day out for the East Lanes. Bill Williams' 63 was the smallest of the three innings but it was, I think, the most correct. But he should have been out before over thirty was on the board.

As things stand, a draw seems the most likely result though there is always the possibility of a collapse on either side. The game will be resumed I believe at 2 p.m. tomorrow (Saturday).

Owing to complications of holidays my ordinary notes and a few words on the Army and Navy game are held over until Saturday's issue.

Not show more discretion in ball distribution. This took the gift off a magnificent performance. Wanklyn was easily the best wing half on view. For confirmation ask Alves. Keating thrilled me with his high class defensive play. Wheeler was overhadowed, but very reliable. It wasn't the fault of the rear guard that Wales lost, though I must confess that Rowlands seemed to be in error when Portugal obtained the winning goal.

After Bernie Gosano had completed a wizardly movement by Ward in the first minute of the game by finishing the ball past Rowlands, the game developed into a story of missed opportunities on the part of the Welsh forwards. Not that Wales dominated the game, but they had territorial advantages, but failed to make use of them.

The second half was ten minutes old before Harrison scored a fine equalising goal, and the same period elapsed before Portugal went ahead again, this time through Ward, who sent the ball into an unprotected goal following a scramble from a corner kick.

Talbot got in two terrific drives from free kicks 30 yards out, but both just sailed by the upright, and Evans left Marques standing with a wonderful shot which also just missed the framework. Generally speaking though the Portuguese defence was never in great danger, and the team deserved to win on the run of the play.

What is Wrong With This Picture?

This is not a puzzle picture, although just about everything in it is wrong except the smiling caddy! Certainly there is something radically wrong with the golfer's stance and with his temper too; the result most likely of a touch of liver, which could so easily have been avoided.

A little dose of Pinkettes, taken at bed-time when you are feeling liverish, will set you right by morning. These ideal little laxative pills, acting in a perfectly natural way, gently activate the intestinal tract, stimulate the liver, dispel constipation, biliousness, sick headache, restore cheerfulness and a sense of general well-being. Try Pinkettes to-night. Chemists everywhere sell them.

TRAGIC DEATH OF TANG YU-JEN

BLAMED FOR PRO-NIPPON POLICY

Shanghai, Dec. 26. Mr. Tang Yu-jen, transferred to be vice-minister of the Chiang Kai-shek cabinet, was shot eight times. He died in hospital, was fired at by three unidentified Chinese in a motor-car.

Mr. Tang Yu-jen was a close political associate of Mr. Wang Ching-wei, who escaped death from assassins' bullets a few weeks ago.—United Press.

Wife Witnesses Tragedy

Shanghai, Dec. 26. The assassination occurred at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Tang Yu-jen was stepping from his motor-car after a visit to Mr. Wang Ching-wei. Just as he was entering the private entrance in the rear of his home he was fired on by two assassins. Mrs. Tang Yu-jen heard the shots and rushed downstairs. She found her husband in a semi-conscious condition.

Mr. Tang was rushed to Dr. New's Hospital, where Dr. New said he was unable to do anything. The patient was then rushed to St. Mary's Hospital, but died en route. The chauffeur of the Minister declared that he saw two other persons in the car, but he was unable to give a description of them owing to the darkness.—Reuter.

Police Investigation

Shanghai, Dec. 26. The French Police are investigating the assassination. However, they can find no clue to the assassins.—United Press.

Chiang's Condolence

Nanking, Dec. 26. A telegram of condolence has been sent to Mrs. Tang Yu-jen by Marshal Chiang Kai-shek expressing his deep sympathy in the tragic death of her husband. Marshal Chiang highly praised his political ability and said that his death is a great loss to the Nationalist Government as well as to the Kuomintang Party.—Yah Kiu Yat Po.

Last Calls on Friends

Shanghai, Dec. 26. It is revealed that Mr. Tang Yu-jen paid a visit to Mr. Wang Ching-wei, former Chairman of the Peiping Political Council and well-known pro-Japanese leader, at 1.30 yesterday afternoon. After a brief talk with Mr. Wang he visited Mr. Wang Ching-wei under whom he served as administrative vice-minister for Foreign Affairs since August 1933.

After seeing the ex-premier he called on Mr. Chang Kung-chuan, the newly appointed Minister of Railways. He remained for about an hour with him. On returning to his residence, situated in a quiet location in the French Concession, he was shot down. The assassins wore thick overcoats and felt hats, which almost completely covered their faces.

Three bullets struck the victim in his left and right hips and buttock. There was an atmosphere of tense drama when Mrs. Tang Yu-jen accompanied her husband to the hospital. Madame Wang Ching-wei and prominent Leftist politicians who called at the residence were greatly moved by the tragic sight and shed tears.

A Trip Postponed

Mr. Tang Yu-jen returned to Shanghai only a few days ago after participating in the conversations with Mr. Aritaoshi, the Japanese Ambassador to China, and General Chiang Kai-shek. It was his intention to revisit Nanking on Christmas Eve, but his plan was postponed because of the students' demonstrations. Students held up all departures of trains from Shanghai. He had hoped to leave for Nanking to-day by aeroplane.

Previously Warned

The vice-minister of Communications was warned by his friends immediately after the sensational attempt on the life of Mr. Wang Ching-wei during the opening of the Sixth Plenary Session of the Central Kuomintang on November 1. Because of his friendly relations with the Japanese Mr. Tang Yu-jen was much criticised for his foreign policy and some of his closest associates had advised him to wear a bullet-proof waist-coat. This advice the young diplomat never took seriously.

It was also said that because of Mr. Tang's cordial relations with Japan he "undermined the popularity of Mr. Wang Ching-wei, the latter was President of the Executive Yuan. In 1924 Mr. Tang Yu-jen visited Peiping and negotiated important Sino-Japanese issues with the Japanese diplomats in China. On more than one occasion when Mr. Wang Ching-wei, then Foreign Minister, was ill and absent from Nanking, Mr. Tang did all the responsible work in the Foreign Ministry. He was the Ministry's chief spokesman since 1934, making many important statements to the press concerning China's dealings with Japan.

PACIFIC AFFAIRS

ONE OF MAJOR ISSUES IN U.S. CONGRESS

Washington, Dec. 26. Returning Congressmen reflect the unprejudiced interest in Pacific affairs of their curative and extensive consideration of Oriental relations. During the January session of Congress these matters will figure prominently.

The world silver situation appears to be the first matter for direct attention as either an attack on or vindication of the American purchasing program will involve discussions of the Chinese monetary policy and international ramifications of that policy.

Prior to the recent world price debacle proposals of the purchasing program planned defence through the policy of silver using will be tried, but the new situation will apparently arouse discussion as to the feasibility of a strictly nationalized programme.

The London Naval Conference developments bill, with the Pacific fleet agitation for new Pacific bases, will be an important issue at the London Conference. The session at any limitation agreement. The Session at United States-Japanese relation already foreshadowed by Senator Pittman's attack on Japan at Las Vegas recently.

Philippines Affairs

Philippines affairs are likely to receive most active attention in view of the large Congressional delegation which visited the islands for the inaugural ceremony in November, but observers have not seen any attempt at any major revision of the Insular Government Act because any further examination of economic relations would apparently necessitate serious consideration of a fundamental change in the Independence Bill.

Hawaiiian situation is also likely to receive more serious attention than ever before due to the pending report of the House Territories Sub-Committee which held public hearings in Honolulu in connection with the matter. Closer ties from new aviation facilities will also tend to bring the discussion of territorial status further into the realm of practical deliberations.

There is apparently no move on foot to modify the Jones-Castellano Act relating to tariff arrangements with the Philippines and Hawaii, which is at present regarded as highly beneficial to both territories.

The Supreme Court decisions on the basic features of the A.A.A. are not expected to upset the present sugar marketing programme, but judicial rejection of the processing tax principle undoubtedly would influence the future evolution of sugar control.

Another matter arousing general interest is the discussion of aerial defence of Alaska which, up to the present, has been authorised in an enabling act but appropriation has never been provided.—United Press.

other followers of Wang Ching-wei were ousted. Mr. Tang was a man of great determination and courage. Despite the frequent attacks by numerous critics on his pro-Japanese policy he carried on for the past two years, during a most crucial period, fearlessly and resolutely. In addition to his work at the Foreign Ministry he was Secretary-General of the Kuomintang Central Political Council between February 1932 and last November.

Mentioned as Ambassador of the temporary exit of Mr. Wang Ching-wei from Nanking politics. It was mentioned in recent Nanking dispatches that he and Mr. C. T. Wang stood the best chances of being elected China's next Ambassador. Mr. Chiang Tso-pin, was appointed Minister of Interior on December 12, leaving the Ambassador's post vacant. Chiang Kai-shek has not yet named the new envoy.

Born in 1894, the late Mr. Tang Yu-jen was a native of Liuyang in Hunan. He was 42 at the time of his death. He is survived by his mother, wife and four young children, two sons and two daughters, all under ten.

On returning from Japan in 1919 Mr. Tang participated in the revolutionary party affairs. He was President of the Hupei Provincial Bank in 1928-1929 and Director of Economic Research of the Bank of China since 1929. Between December 1931 and last November he was a reserve member of the Kuomintang Central Executive Committee and was elected a full member during the November election.

Bomb Explosion

Shanghai, Dec. 26. A bomb exploded in a basket carried by a coolie on Darroch Road, the same street in which a Japanese bluejacket, Hideo Nakayama, was mysteriously killed on November 9. The Japanese threw a cordon of troops around the scene.

The explosion occurred when a second coolie kicked the basket. Both coolies were injured.

The Japanese troops have drawn from the scene of the bombing incident. The authorities are apparently convinced that the affair has no significance. The coolie picked up the bomb from a scrapheap.—United Press.

GAMING HOUSE FOR CHILDREN

BETTING ON HORSE RACE GAME

Charged with keeping a gaming house at No. 423 Reclamation Street, ground floor, which the police stated was patronised by children only, Tan Yuk, 26, shop 404, and Chan Yim Sang, 59, mistress of the Wing Cheung shop, were each fined $50 by Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistrate's court this morning.

Detective-Sergeant Ellis stated that the defendants ran a kind of horse racing game, which was played by children only. The winner was given odds of five to one; the second, two to one; and the third even money. The children bought counters to bet with, and these could be exchanged for money, or sweets and books.

His Worship (to defendants): What do you mean by swindling children like this?

Defendants replied that the counters were changed for sweets.

His Worship: You make a good thing out of it. What ball are they on?

Detective-Sergeant Ellis: $50 each, your Worship.

His Worship: Fined $50 each. The sum of $230 which was picked up was placed in the Poor Box.

ANOTHER CASE

An 18-year-old lad, Li Ki, was charged with keeping a gaming house at No. 424 Reclamation Street, ground floor, and seven other men were charged with gambling. The ball of three absconders of $3 each was treated, and the remainder were discharged.

Detective-Sergeant Ellis stated that he had been informed that the first defendant received commission of ten per cent, but the police could not prove that.

Defendant stated that if any player was to get the 100 mark he would receive a packet of melon seeds, and if he got the 200 mark he would receive a packet of form of bagatelle.

The game was charged for a turn, and one coolie all the defendants. His Worship said to first accused, "You get away with this because the police were unable to produce evidence that it was against the law, but I think it is my duty to warn you if anyone else runs this game and accepts a commission, you are liable to a very heavy fine."

GREAT POWER PLANT

ROTHSCHILD GIVEN CONCESSION

(Special to "Telegraph")

Santiago de Chile, Dec. 26. A concession valued at $25,000,000 has been granted to Senor Mauricio Rothschild for what is claimed to be the largest hydro-electric plant in South America.

The Bolivian Government has signed the agreement, and will receive five per cent. of the gross earnings of the hydro plant.

The construction work is expected to take five years.—Reuter Special.
